REDS SNUB U. S. IN SHIP QUIZ

BULLETIN

MOSCOW, Oct. 27 (AP)—It was reliably learned today that United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt had been unsuccessful in repeated attempts to gain an appointment at the foreign office in his quest for information on the United States-owned steamer City of Flint.

The ambassador went to the foreign office last night but failed to see any high official, and his efforts still were unavailing up to 1 p. m. (5 a. m., EST) today.

MOSCOW, Oct. 27 (AP)—The United States-owned steamer City of Flint again sailed the northern seas today, but whether as a German prize of war or a free agent no one of official standing here would say.

U. S. WILL FLAY RED SHIP GRAB

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (INS)—The United States government is prepared to denounce Rusia as having committed an un-neutral act if unofficial reports are true that the American freighter, City of Flint, has been turned over to Germany, it was learned officially today.

At the State Department it was announced that no confirmation of the reports had been received, and that a faint hope was still held that the Soviet government would return the vessel and cargo to its American crew.

Although department officials declined to speculate on what action, if any, would be taken as a reprisal measure, they did state that all possible retaliatory steps are being canvassed.

Basis for a denunciation of Russia for committing an un-neutral act—if she has—would be Article 21 of the 1907 Hague Convention it was asserted. This article states:

"The prize ship must leave as soon as the circumstances which justified its entry are at an end. If it does not, the neutral power must order it to leave at once; should it fail to obey, the neutral power must employ the means at its disposal to release it with its officers and crew and to intern the prize crew."

The Soviet Russian announcement that the ship had been ordered out of the Arctic port of Murmansk after inspection of her cargo did not clarify whether she was in control of a prize crew of 18 or her American crew.

There still was no official word that the City of Flint actually had departed but well informed quarters said last night she had left, flying the American flag.

SOVIETS SILENT

Unofficial British quarters expressed belief that the Russian government was keeping silent to give the German prize crew "a running start" toward a German port. This was predicated on a belief that the German crew, released from internment, was back in control of the freighter.

Today German circles expressed confidence the City of Flint would fly the German flag.

Further international complications in the case were foreseen if the City of Flint were unable to get through the British blockade in the North sea.

It seemed probable that British warships would be lying in wait for her and just as likely that she would be under the guard of German submarines—assuming she is in German hands and headed for Germany.

Whether she still carried her cargo of tractors, grain and other shipments consigned to Britain likewise was in doubt. (The Danish radio, announcing the release of the ship, said the cargo first had been taken off.)

Germany has declared that at least part of the cargo was contraband and informed quarters at Berlin insisted that the City of Flint soon would be in a German harbor to await action of a prize court to determine disposition of ship and cargo.

U. S. DEMANDS SHIP

United States Secretary of State Hull had demanded that Russia hand over the vessel and cargo to the American crew.

In informed quarters here it was said that the City of Flint flew the American flag as she sailed out into the Arctic ocean—a denial of German reports that the Nazi swastika flew from the staff.

(The 4963-ton steamer might be flying her own colors and still be in control of the prize crew placed aboard when a German raider captured her last week.

(For example, World War instructions to the United States navy were that a neutral ship taken as a contraband carrier should keep its own colors up until a competent court had adjudged the vessel a lawful prize.)

EXPECT SUB CONVOY

There were indications that the City of Flint would be or already had been picked up by a convoy of German submarines. Berlin reports said the submarine commanders would be "only too happy" if British warships attempted to take over the vessel on the long

BULLETIN

MOSCOW, Oct. 27 (INS)—To hear a declaration on foreign policy by Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov and probably to vote annexation of the White Russian and Ukrainian portions of Poland, the Supreme Council of the Soviet Union today was summoned to an extraordinary session for next Tuesday.

Pope Pius Assails Dictators As Menace to World as He Pleads for Lasting Peace

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today condemned governments which assume "that absolute autonomy which belongs exclusively to the Supreme Maker" and offered consolation to dismembered Poland.

In the first encyclical of his reign the Pontiff, after recounting the failure of his efforts for peace, also pleaded for settlements at the end of the present European war which would avoid the errors of past treaties which failed to bring lasting peace.

He blamed denial of "the authority of God and the sway of his law" for the rise of governments which make the state "the last end of life."

MENACE TO WORLD

Continuing his attack on claims of unlimited authority by the state, the Pope said such practice was "not simply an error harmful to the internal life of nations, to their prosperity, to a larger well-ordered increase of their well-being, but likewise injures relations between peoples."

Its effects, he added, were to "break the unity of supranational society, rob the law of nations of foundation and vigor and lead to a violation of others rights and impede agreement and peaceful intercourse."

The war, he said, would fail to impose a decisive change in conditions—unless followed by treaties of peace "animated by justice and by equity toward all."

He warned "there is danger lest settlements be born in such conditions" as "sacrifices and sufferings."

At the same time, he said, respect for treaties was indispensable to peace.

POPE PIUS XII

"As we write these lines," the Pope said, the terrible news comes to us that the dread tempest of war is already raging in spite of all our efforts to avert it."

He said "new errors" added to the "doctrinal aberrations of the past" have pushed these "to extremes which lead inevitably to a drift toward chaos."

SYMPATHY FOR POLAND

"Once the authority of God and the sway of his law are denied in this way," Pope Pius declared in his letter of more than 11,000 words to all Catholic bishops, "civil authority as an inevitable result tends to attribute to itself that absolute autonomy which belongs exclusively to the Supreme Maker.

"It puts itself in the place of The Almighty and elevates the state or group into the last end of life, the supreme criterion of moral and juridical order, and therefore forbids every appeal to the principles of natural reason and Christian conscious.

"Fortunately, false principles do not always exercise their full influence, especially when the age-old Christian traditions on which peoples have been nurtured remain still deeply, even if unconsciously, rooted in their hearts," the Pope declared.

This was interpreted as a reference to such devoutly Catholic peoples as the Poles.

Poland, the Pontiff said, "has the right to generous brotherly sympathy of the whole world while it awaits . . . the hour of resurrection in harmony with principles of justice and true peace."

Pope Pius described his "expectation and conviction" that each party will "represent its plighted word" in treaties as an indispensable condition of peace.

He said peace would not be achieved until "both sides are ready

War Diary

56th Day

Behind the Front—Great Britain, convinced Germany will soon start a large-scale air attack and increase submarine warfare, is ready for a "fight to the finish," and Germany herself gives indications of commencing a "no quarter" conflict. Britain opened her volunteer lists for the first time. Her acknowledged hope was to keep Russia neutral. France increased her war budget and awaited a "big push" by the Nazis.

Tension between Finland and Soviet Russia was strained by failure to reach an amicable agreement, though negotiations were not considered ended. The vital vote on the neutrality bill repeal was due sometime today in Washington.

On the Sea, in the Air—The American merchantman City of Flint was on the open seas under her own flag today but her status was doubtful. She was ordered out of the Russian port of Murmansk, presumably with a German prize crew still aboard. While the United States demanded she be handed back, Germany claimed her as a legal seizure of war. The British admitted the German pocket battleship Deutschland, which captured the Flint, was roving the North Atlantic and menacing British shipping. It was seen possible, also, that Nazi submarines are operating in the Mediterranean Sea. Britain declared the undersea menace was being controlled and lauded its anti-aircraft defense of the coast. Nazi submarine wrecked, with crew of 60 dead, was washed up on English coast.

On the Land—French and German advance patrols clashed today, but there was no heavy fighting. Nazi troops and mechanized arms were concentrated all along the Siegfried line, giving rise to belief a major German advance was planned. Heavy rain and snow held up operations all along the Western Front.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Will Dig for Body Of Missing Girl

Increased fears that the girl they seek is already dead today brought an order for State Police, armed with picks and shovels, to search property owned in Reading by Dr. Ensang W. Cheng, 51, for the possible grave of Catherine Dulong, missing schoolgirl.

At the same time, state police detectives combed Boston's Chinatown for clues of the girl's whereabouts. Scores of friends of the girl and her family were being questioned in Woburn.

And as the search was being pressed, Dr. Cheng and Henry J. McCue, 34, of Waverly rd., Woburn, a florist with a long police record for larceny and criminal attacks, were arraigned and held in $10,000 each, double surety, in Woburn court.

Dr. Cheng, Harvard College and Harvard medical school graduate, was charged with illegal surgery on the Dulong girl and with detaining her against her will, a technical act of kidnaping.

HELD IN HEAVY BAIL

On the kidnaping charge, he was held in an additional $1000, personal recognizance.

McCue was charged with illegal surgery, on the state's allegation that he procured and abetted the crime.

Dr. Cheng and McCue were a strangely contrasting pair, as they sat in the prisoner's dock with

Dr. Ensang Cheng Henry McCue

Woburn court's third defendant of the day, an unidentified drunk.

Cheng, a native of Hawaii and an American citizen by birth, was dressed with professional neatness in spotless blue serge suit and a well-tailored black topcoat.

He sat impassive and apparently unconcerned, holding an expensive felt hat carefully in his long-fingered, surgeon's hands.

FATE OF GIRL UNKNOWN

When news photographers snapped flash bulbs as he passed through the corridor, Dr. Cheng never changed expression or missed a stride.

McCue, however, ducked and covered up, with obvious embarrassment. He was still clad today in the stained overalls and muddy shoes he was wearing when he was arrested at his Woburn greenhouse.

Asking that the heavy $10,000 double surety bail be set, Police Chief Jeremiah Cullinane of Reading told Judge Curtis W. Nash bluntly:

"We don't know whether this Dulong girl is alive or dead. But we have ample evidence that a crime was committed. She's been missing five weeks. If she's dead, $10,000 bail is none to much."

Atty. Anthony W. DiCecca of Somerville, representing Dr. Cheng, asked that the bail be reduced.

"My client is a professional man of standing in his community," he said.

"His reputation is being unfairly injured. This missing girl has been missing before and has turned up all right. A man is in state prison now, serving a long sentence on her accusation."

Atty. James E. Hinchey, representing McCue, told the court:

'There's no evidence whatever against my client. The state is just looking for a case. This is a fishing expedition."

Judge Nash nevertheless ordered the $10,000 bail and continued the hearing to Nov. 13.

Pleas of not guilty were offered

Ruby Keeler Will Sue Al For Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—Al Jolson's expressed hope of patching up his differences with pretty Ruby Keeler are fading.

The "mammy" singer and his actress-dancer wife disclosed today they have reached a property settlement.

Miss Keeler said she would seek a divorce in November. Al will be in Florida to permit a divorce by default.

The agreement gives her $400 a week for life or until she remarries, when she will receive a lump sum of $50,000. She will retain custody of their adopted son, Al, Jr., 4, for whom Jolson will establish a $100,000 trust fund.

Jolson, who disclosed the separation two days ago, said it resulted from minor differences.

Miss Keeler said, however, there had been difficulties for several years. A temporary separation last summer, when she went to Honolulu, failed to reconcile them.

Speed Rescue of Two Still Trapped in Mine

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Oct. 27 (Canadian Press)—After freeing four entombed men and recovering the body of a fifth, rescue squads worked today to release S. D. Slack and J. Kouack, two other miners still trapped in the Lake Shore Mine.

SHOOTS SELF, DIES IN SPEEDING AUTO

In one of the most dramatic suicides in Massachusetts annals, the 25-year-old son of a wealthy Winchester manufacturer's agent today shot himself as his car speeded along the Ipswich road, near Topsfield.

And as the bullet crashed through his brain the youth's automobile plunged from the highway, ricocheted off a tree, smashed through a barbed wire fence and wound up against another tree.

The youth, Roger V. Pettingell, Jr., of Main st., Winchester, had been dead for several hours, police said, when a passing motorist noticed the car 75 feet off the road and notified the Topsfield barracks.

Troopers George Edwards and Gus Swanson and Police Chief Orman Taylor of Topsfield raced to the scene and made a hasty examination of the spectacular wreck.

Slumped over the wheel they found the body of young Pettingell, with a .32-caliber revolver at his feet.

He had apparently raised the pistol to his head and fired as the car speeded along.

A possible romance angle was injected into the case when the boy's mother, Mrs. Roger Pettingell, revealed that Roger, Jr., had been on the way to see a girl friend when he left home last night.

She added, however, that the youth had appeared to be in excellent spirits.

Working for his father as a salesman, young Pettingell was not bothered by any money trouble, his mother said.

RUTH JUDD 'AIDED' IN ESCAPE

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 27 (AP)—Y. C. White says it is "perfectly obvious" that Winnie Ruth Judd had help in her midnight flight from Arizona State Hospital.

White, secretary to Gov. Bob Jones, is directing an investigation into the trunk slayer's escape. He said he believes the one-time "tiger woman" had assistance both inside and outside the institution.

He ordered the inquiry pressed until the "person or persons" responsible are discovered.

Meantime, baffled officers conducted a clueless search for the twice condemned murderess. Their theories place Mrs. Judd from within a few blocks of the hospital to as far away as Mexico City.

Sheriff Lon Jordan and a deputy searched the home of Mrs. Judd's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, as a "precautionary measure."

Mrs. McKinnell informed the officers her daughter's Tuesday night escapade had further impaired the health of Mr. McKinnell, seriously ill and bed-ridden for months.

The parents said Mrs. Judd came to their home shortly after her escape and they attempted to persuade her to return to the hospital.

DOWD PLEA IS REJECTED

The full bench of the Supreme Court today refused to order the Bar Association to file further specifications in its charges against Sheriff John F. Dowd, under fire for alleged conspiracy, with two other public employes to extort money from state and county workers on threat of dismissal.

The justices did, however, grant one Dowd request—that a reference to John Patrick Connolly, Suffolk Court clerk who resigned under fire be stricken from the records of the case.

Connolly's name came up when Reuben L. Lurie, counsel for the Bar Ass'n, fixed the time of the ending of the alleged conspiracy as "June 16, 1939, when charges were filed against John Patrick Connolly."

Husband's Ire Drove Her to Drink--Alone

SALEM, Oct. 27—"If I went to night clubs with my husband he would tip tables over and throw sugar bowls at me—that happened to me a few times."

So, related Mrs. Bertha D. Kimball, 38, an attractive beautician of Danvers, she went to night clubs unescorted by her husband. Judge Phelan, in probate court, had under advisement today her suit for divorce, on grounds of cruelty, from Elforest F. Kimball of Danvers, head of an express company.

Mrs. Kimball explained:

"I could have only one drink because I would have to watch him all the time. I couldn't trust him. He would insult me in the presence of other couples there, too."

With two cars in the family, she testified, her husband would follow her in his car and once he overtook her, crowded her over to the side of the road.

"He pulled me out of my car, put me in his car and then drove me home," she told the court. "He made me go to bed at 8 p. m. He pulled all the wires and spark plugs out of my car and I had to fix it."

Once, she said, she found gas jets turned on, the house full of gas and her husband asleep intoxicated. Under cross-examination she said a boat trip she took to the Army-Notre Dame game last fall was made with a girl friend and that they had no male companions in their quarters on the ship.

Kimball did not testify.

Petzold Case Sentences Due

Five defendants convicted on burglary and holdup charges in the second "Petzold case" trial were due for sentencing by Judge Paul G. Kirk in Suffolk Superior Court today.

William Gillar, Frank Williams, Albert Abrams, Nicholas Geraigery and Guy Marcucella were found guilty by a jury of charges connected with the burglary of the S. S. Pierce store in Copley Square and the holdup of a Brighton rent collector.

Their trial was an aftermath of a confession by Paul Petzold of Reading, former Boston police officer, who pleaded guilty to similar charges.

Britain and Italy Sign Trade Pact

ROME, Oct. 27 (INS)—Italy and England today signed an agreement for the formation of a permanent mixed trade commission, authentic sources stated.

The commission is designed to speed up and extend commercial relations and iron out difficulties concerned with Britain's contraband list.

'SORDID PROCEDURE,' F. D. RITORT TO DIES 'RED' LIST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt branded as "sordid procedure" today publication by the Dies committee of the names of more than 500 government employes on the "membership and mailing list" of the American League for Peace and Democracy.

The committee charged that the league was a "front" for Communist activity.

"SORDID PROCEDURE"

Asked to comment on publication of the list this week, the President told a press conference he had not read enough of the details of that rather "sordid procedure" to comment.

He agreed to a reporter's request that direct quotation of the phrase be permitted, a departure from the usual press conference procedure.

The Dies Committee linked with national defense today its charge to the Justice Department that the American League for Peace and Democracy was guilty of a "flagrant violation" of federal law.

A committee letter to the department, bearing the signature of Chairman Dies (D.) of Texas, said there was "ample evidence" that the league was an agency of the Communist International in Moscow.

NAMES MADE PUBLIC

Therefore, the committee contended, the league was violating the law requiring agents of foreign principals to register with the state department.

"The case of the American League for Peace and Democracy, formerly known as the American League Against War and Fascism, clearly requires attention in connecting with the strengthening of our national defense," the letter added.

The committee made public Wednesday what it termed a league "membership and mailing list." It contained 563 names of persons described by the committee as government employes.

At that time, the committee said the purpose was to show how the League "permeated" the United States government.

Atrocities Have Begun

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

That neutrality argument in Congress will soon reach the stage where they will start taking prisoners. For birds who don't want to fight we sure like to talk about it.

No subject is ever so dangerous that an orator will avoid it. He will make a speech about it just to prove he should have changed the subject.

Here is the answer to the whole problem. The Republicans want to keep out of war. But they don't want the Democrats to keep 'em out of it.

Woman's Name Goes on Ballot

Judge Abraham E. Pinanski in Suffolk Superior Court today issued a writ of mandamus ordering the Boston Election Commission to place the name of Mrs. Susan K. Donovan on the ballot as candidate for the city council from ward 1, East Boston.

The writ marked the first time the Superior Court had exercised its new power, granted last year, to issue extraordinary writs.

While a hearing had been scheduled for today on the objection to Mrs. Donavan's candidacy, it was cancelled when Judge Pinanski ruled that the objection was filed nine minutes after the deadline for such filing last Oct. 24.

'Two-in-One' Auto Accident Badly Injures Girl, 2 Rescues

Hurt twice in the same accident—first when hit by a car and again when run over a second time as the auto jerked the wrong way during the rescue—Helen Conaty, 25, of Berkeley court, Brookline, was in a serious condition at Cambridge Hospital today.

Capt. Hobert J. Douglas, Jr., of the Cambridge police and Allan Gilbert of Concord ave., Cambridge, a spectator, were also hurt when, according to police, the auto moved as they were attempting to extricate Miss Conaty, pinned underneath.

The girl and her rescuers were all jammed against a parked machine on Church street, near Harvard sq., and all three had to be assisted from the wreckage.

In the double mishap, Miss Conaty received three broken ribs, a broken shoulder blade and possible internal injuries. Police said the driver of the car was Edwin Covell, 28, of Gleason st., West Medford.

Dismembered Body Found in Chimney

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 27 (AP)—The dismembered body of Mrs. Abraham Schwaczkin, wife of an Omaha cantor, was found stuffed in a chimney of her home here.

The head, an arm and both legs were in the chimney, the torso and the second arm in the attic.

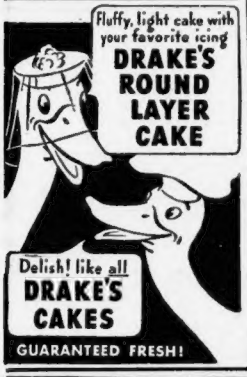
Promoter of 'Stag' Show Put on Probation

BROCKTON, Oct. 27—After testimony by two reserve policemen about a "stag" show which was raided here last January, Timothy Propas, a Perkins st. chef, was found guilty by a Plymouth superior court jury of promoting an immoral show and given a suspended sentence of one year.



Byrd's Snow Cruiser On Way to Ohio

WARSAW, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP)—Admiral Richard E. Byrd's huge cruiser with which he expects to explore the Antarctic ice wastes lumbered out of Warsaw at 7:30 this morning on the second day of its slow journey to the Atlantic coast.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter of the Armour Institute of Technology Research Foundation, said he and his helpers would not stop in Fort Wayne as was planned in the original schedule, but would spend the night "some place in Ohio."

The cruiser left Chicago early yesterday and encountered so much difficulty on the highways that it was 45 miles behind its schedule when it arrived here last night.

Although engineers and highway men have gone over the entire route to Boston, Mass., where the cruiser will be loaded on Admiral Byrd's boat, the big steel juggernaut was halted for several hours yesterday before it could be taken across a narrow bridge west of here.

The 75,000-pound cruiser designed by Dr. Poulter is 20 feet wide, 55 feet long and 12 feet high. It ran into numerous difficulties along the way yesterday.

Hammers Hubby To Death in Sleep

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 27 (AP)—A woman telephoned police headquarters today:

"I've murdered my husband."

A cruiser squad sped to the address and found the body of Henry Smythe, 41, his head battered. Police Capt. Charles Richmond said Smythe's widow confessed striking her husband with a hammer as he slept. Mrs. Smythe told the officer she and her husband had been estranged.

"I should have done it long ago," Richmond quoted her.

GOVERNOR NO GARNER BOOSTER

A pretty certificate listing Gov. Saltonstall as a charter member of the "Garner-for-President" Club of Texas was on its way back to the Lone Star state today and the governor's official car remained undorned with a "Garner-for-President" sticker.

Some wag sent the Garner club the name of "Leverett Saltonstall" of Boston and the governor received a charter membership certificate and windshield stickers from E. B. Germany, co-chairman of the Garner committee.

The certificate said:

"This certifies that the undersigned, Leveritt Saltontall is an original member of the Garner-for-President Committee formed to urge the candidacy of John Nance Garner of Texas for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States."

But the Governor replied as follows:

"I am obliged to return this certificate as denial that I am a charter member of your committee, but refrain from elaboration upon my refusal to support this candidacy.

"It does not seem proper for a Republican governor to comment upon the internal affairs of the opposing party."

Hospital Employes Brought in Injured

HURLEY PORTRAIT 'MISSING'

Whereabouts of that disputed portrait of former Gov. Charles F. Hurley baffled state authorities today, as formal acceptance or rejection of the picture rested with Gov. Saltonstall and the Executive Council.

The painting wasn't in the council chamber, where it had been hanging until its rejection yesterday by the State Art Commission.

It wasn't in the office of Commission Chairman Charles R Greco, whither State House superintendent said he had sent it—or if it was, no one in Greco's office knew it.

ARTIST INCENSED

Apparently Jacob Binder, artist who painted the picture, didn't know where it was, either.

The artist, who has painted a number of portraits of distinguished people and who won the first award at the New England art exhibit of 1929 for his "The Talmudist," was incensed no end over rejection of the Hurley portrait. He centered his guns on H. Dudley Murphy, artist and secretary of the commission.

"I do not know what qualifications Mr. Murphy has for passing on so fine a portrait," he said. "He is a painter of flowers. If he ever has done a portrait, I don't know anything about it. I have never seen one of his products."

MURPHY IN RETORT

Chairman Greco declined to get into the argument, but Secretary Murphy retorted

"It doesn't matter whether the likeness is good or bad. What counts most is a good artistic portrait. This picture just doesn't live up to the standards for the State House."

Former Governor Hurley, who approved the disputed likeness of himself, said today he made it plain to Binder that he would have to accept responsibility "for any criticism that might be raised by the art commission."

Moon's Eclipse Visible Tonight

Now it's the moon's turn to undergo a "blackout."

An eclipse which will block off 99.2 per cent of the moon's surface and described as the most spectacular lunar show since 1935, will be visible about midnight tonight.

Both North and South America will get ringside seats for the performance, starting at 10:42 and ending at 4:31 a. m.

Leon Campbell, Harvard astronomer, said the eclipse will be partially visible in points in Europe, Northern Asia and even the Arctic regions.

The show will play an encore tomorrow night from 11:54 p. m. to 1:36 a. m.

Widower's Shooting Pronounced Suicide

John H. Shackley, 45, of Commercial st., East Weymouth, widower and father of two children, was dead today with a bullet wound in the head.

His death was termed a suicide by Medical Examiner Robert M. Ryan. He was manager of the Weymouth division of the American Express Co.

SLEEPWALKER IN PLUNGE

Plunging through a third floor window while walking in his sleep, James MacCormack, 17, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, fell 10 feet to a second floor roof, then rolled off and dropped to the street. He was treated at City Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Obliging Gent!

READING, Pa., Oct. 27 (AP)—A water company employe went twice to an outlying home to read a meter but found no one at home.

He left a note for the home owner to notify the water bureau when the meter could be read.

Today the owner lugged a detached meter to the water bureau office and announced:

"Well, here it is."

Crew Not Cupid After Cap'n Zeb Now

Cap'n Zeb Tilton, the 72-year-old Vineyard Haven salt whose romantic adventures have been news for weeks was back in the limelight today with announcement in federal court that he'll have to pay his crew $194 back wages.

Three crew members charged the wages were due them for work on the fishing schooner Alice Wentworth which subsequently was sold at auction by the United States marshal. The ship was owned by Capt. Tilton and Stephen C. Luce, Jr., president of the Martha's Vineyard Bank.

ARMS VOTE TODAY IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Weary of its long neutrality debate, the Senate placed a drastic limitation on speech-making today in a drive to act on arms embargo repeal by nightfall.

Although Democratic leader Barkley failed to win agreement to take the final vote at 5 p. m. EST, opposition chieftains accepted his suggestion that no senator talk more than 20 minutes on any amendment. Earlier this week a 45-minute limit had been adopted.

Barkley conferred with Administration lieutenants last night and reported afterward that more than 65 of the 96 senators would vote for the neutrality bill.

The foes conceded defeat, but said that their fight had not been in vain. They expressed hope that the Senate debate had stiffened opposition forces in the House, which will consider the bill next week.

"WAR FEVER COOLED"

"I certainly think the fight has slowed up the war fever," said Senator Clark, (D.) of Missouri. "We have won a great moral victory."

Clark, a leading opponent of repeal, asserted the Senate debate had made it "absolutely clear" that European countries could not expect the United States to participate again in a European conflict.

In this connection, Administration senators contended that their position had been strengthened by President Roosevelt's declaration last night that the United States is neutral and does not intend to become involved in war.

Speaking from the White House by radio to the New York Herald Tribune Forum, the President said that those who contend his foreign policy may lead this nation into war are guilty of "one of the worst fakes in current history."

WIN TEST VOTE

Although previously confident of their strength, Administration leaders said that their expectations had been borne out by yesterday's test vote on an amendment to prevent repeal of the arms embargo.

Barkley said that the 55-to-27 vote against the amendment "was a clear cut test of strength, but we will have even more votes when an effort is made to eliminate the section repealing the embargo."

Administration forces also stopped, 54 to 36, a Republican attempt to forbid the sale of poison gas and chemical warfare materials to foreign countries.

They accepted a proposal by Senator Tobey (R.), N. H., to ban the use of the American flag by foreign vessels.

When the Senate bill goes to the House, both sides expect a close fight, which will last only two or three days. The House voted last summer for a modified arms embargo.

Starts 9-Year Term For Ex-Wife Kidnap

NORTHAMPTON, Oct. 27—Found guilty of charges of armed robbery and unlawful possession of a gun, James J. Kehoe, 26, of Hudson, who last summer herded his ex-wife, her present husband and another man into a car and drove away with them, today began serving sentences totaling 8½ to 9 years in State Prison.

Judge Nelson P. Brown in Superior Court imposed concurrent sentences of 5½ years each on charges of armed robbery of Cyril Beckwith and Leroy Langdon, and a sentence of 3 to 3½ years on the charge of unlawful possession of a revolver.

NORMANDIE TIEUP COSTLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—The French Line said it was costing approximately $1000 per day, above pier rental, to keep the superliner Normandie tied up in the safety of New York Harbor.

Griffin Hits Capital Solons

To the Editor of the Boston Evening American: Washington, D. C., Oct. 25, 1939

Listening to some of the speeches in the Senate one would be almost convinced that many members of the upper house of Congress do not represent sovereign states of the Union in that body but instead that they represent France, England, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Poland, China and various parts of the British Empire.

They seem to be solely concerned with solving the problems of those countries.

The fact that this republic is suffering from the greatest depression in its history with ten million walking the streets looking for work, other millions having their last penny picked from their pockets by countless tax collectors, federal, state, city and county, is of no interest to many of our representatives in Congress.

If they had expended half of the energy and enthusiasm during the past ten years in solving our own manifold problems that they have used up during the last month in trying to solve the problems of foreign countries, America today would have no unemployment problem and would be enjoying the greatest prosperity.—William Griffin, Editor and Publisher, New York Enquirer.

'It's Not Our War,' N. E. Mothers Plead

Rallying to the greatest anti-war movement in the history of America, Boston women and those in cities and towns throughout New England registered today in the Legion of Mothers of America, pledging support to an organization which seeks to keep this country from being drawn into the European war.

Letters and telephone messages literally poured in from mothers and sisters, wives, daughters and sweethearts, all enthusiastic in praise of the Legion. Letters enclosing registration in membership came from Boston, Fall River, Whitman, Somerville, Chelsea, Lynn, Melrose, Cambridge, North Attleboro, Watertown, Brockton, Neponset, Dorchester, Stoneham, Milton, Norwood, Taunton and Worcester.

ORGANIZE FRIENDS

Other women pledged not only membership but their active support in calling to the attention of their friends and neighbors the purposes of the Legion.

Mrs. Sara B. Myer, of Beal st., Waltham, wrote: "I am a widow with one son and it would kill me to see him go overseas. It is not our battle so why should we send our youths out of our own country?"

Mrs. Elizabeth Colford of Bennett st., Brighton, wrote: "I want to join your Legion. It seems imperative that we check the underhanded methods of those forces which would draw us into the present war."

Mrs. Mary C. Mayor of Washburn ave., Beachmont declared: "I have three sons of military age. The splendid efforts of the Legion of Mothers of America is one of the most powerful instruments we possess to maintain neutrality.

"There isn't any reason why the organization should not be successful. May the Legion of Mothers of America remain together, even after this troubled world finds peace again."

From Mrs. Helen Knox, Quincy st., Roxbury: "I wish to register as a member. I am a widowed mother with an only son."

Mrs. Sylvia Borsetti of Locust ave., Beverly and Mrs. Marie Boisvert, Munroe st., Beverly, united to say: "We are glad to join your Legion of Mothers."

MONUMENT TO MOTHERS

All the letters; some sad, some hopeful, some anxious, but all in praise of the organization were a monument to brave mothers who didn't want their sons to shed blood on a foreign battlefield.

The Legion is a non-profit, non-political, non-partisan organization. It only requires that members be American citizens. Unmarried women may join.

The platform of the Legion of Mothers is:

1—To oppose the sending of American soldiers to fight on foreign soil.

2—To support a strong program for adequate national defense.

3—To oppose all radical and subversive groups whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

You can become a member by mailing your name and address to the Legion of Mothers, Box 228, Boston, Mass.

500 Hub Catholics Go to N. Y. Sunday

Archbishop Francis J. Spellman will be presiding prelate at the Franciscan Third Order second convention, province of the Immaculate Conception, which will start Sunday in New York and will be attended by many worshippers from Boston.

Five hundred communicants at St. Leonard's Church, North End, will leave tomorrow morning for New York to participate.

Hitler Nephew To Speak Here

The "inside story" of Naziism will be unfolded in a speech at Ford Hall Forum Sunday night by William Patrick Hitler, nephew of Adolph Hitler.

William Patrick Hitler, whose claims of kinship with Der Fuehrer have been authenticated by documents, will speak on "What the German People are Thinking."

The speaker lived in Germany for many years and became an outspoken critic of the Nazi regime. He will discuss operation of the Nazi propaganda machine, the plight of 30,000,000 Catholics, and the burdens of the German working people.

An accountant and engineer, William Patrick Hitler has promised to discuss first hand experiences in Germany, his uncle as a man, alleged corruption among Nazi leaders, the "myth" of Hitler's simplicity and attempts to assassinate the chancellor.

U. S. Unemployment Assailed by Landon

MOUNT VERNON, Ia., Oct. 27 (AP)- Alfred M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, today declared unemployment in the United States has left almost as many persons homeless and hungry "as has the ruthless force of Hitler and Stalin," in a speech prepared for delivery at the inauguration of Dr. J. B. Magee as president of Cornwall College here.

Tobin Denies Support Of 'Any Candidates'

Mayor Tobin declared today that he is not supporting any political candidate in the Nov. 7 election.

"It has been called to my attention," said the Mayor, "that certain candidates are implying that I am interested in their success. Such is not the case. The voters are competent to determine who their representatives shall be without advice from me."

Virtues Pay—Others!

OAKLAND, Md., Oct. 27 (AP)—Charity, thrift and honesty cost Mrs. Sylvia Stewart $1400.

She took Jesse Loraw, 78, her recluse uncle-by-marriage, into her home for care before he died. Thriftily she made over a pair of his trousers for her children.

In secret pockets she found $1400 and turned it over to his estate. Not a blood relation, she will receive none of the money.

Executed in Chair After 10 Reprieves

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Charles Price 28-year-old Negro, was put to death in the Cook County electric chair shortly after midnight today for murdering Nicholas Miller, an insurance collector, in a holdup March 30, 1936.

Price had been in the shadow of the chair 10 times previously but escaped by last minute legal maneuvers. His last hope was shattered yesterday when a jury found him sane.

COURT AIDS MAINE 'SLAVERY' GIRL

Pretty, auburn-haired Mary Kane, 19-year-old runaway from a Maine state school won't have to go back to the "slavery" she claimed she endured there, a ruling by Judge Leo. L. Leary in South Boston court indicated today.

Having listened to the girl's story in a carefully guarded private hearing in his lobby, the judge continued the case to Dec. 21, at the same time flatly warning Maine officials that they will have to institute formal extradition proceedings if they hope to get Miss Kane into their custody again.

Judge Leary released the girl in care of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walsh of Third st., South Boston.

Bareheaded, her reddish gold hair in a neat bob, Miss Kane wore a schoolgirl ensemble of sport shoes, plaid skirt and knitted sweater and looked younger than her 19 years.

She was radiant as she half-skipped, half-ran out of Judge Leary's lobby to her uncle's waiting auto.

F. D. Parries 3d Term Query

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (INS)—President Roosevelt refused today once more to be drawn into any discussion of third term possibilities.

A reporter asked the President whether the oral spanking administered to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace by White House Secretary Stephen T. Early for advocating a third term might also apply to Secretary of Interior Ickes.

The President smiled and suggested that the conference should confine itself to news.

NAMED MILITARY AIDE

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 27 — Appointment of Capt. Charles F. Bowen as adjutant general of New Hampshire was announced here by Gov. Maltby. He succeed Charles W. Howard who retired Saturday on reaching retirement age.

ZERO HOUR NEAR FOR HOME FORT

Their long fight for their South Boston home lost by a judge's decision, the Biltramucci Stockus family waited today behind barricaded doors and windows for the inevitable arrival of a sheriff with an eviction warrant.

For months, they held out, declaring, the federal government did not have the legal power to force them to leave their Vale st. home, in the center of a proposed housing area.

During this time the embattled Mr. and Mrs. Stockus, daughter, son-in-law and tiny grandchild were protected by an injunction, restraining agents from serving a eviction order.

They were forced to barricade their doors and board up smashed windows, after vandals made one attack after another on their home.

But the temporary injunction was dissolved by Judge Patrick J. Courtney in the land court. The Stockus family will be the first ever ousted from a U. S. housing site in Massachusetts.

Housing authorities, following Judge Courtney's decision, announced that demolition of property in the area, including the Stockus home, will proceed immediately and construction bids will be opened today.

'Typical' Wife Tells of Tour

Honored by prominent merchants and given a first-hand view of industrial life in the northeast, "Mrs. Typical New England Consumer" was back home today in her Hingham house where she won her title.

She is Mrs. J. Rodman Russ, chosen through her ability to prove she had mastered the art of maintaining the tradition of high American living standards on a modest budget.

For a week, she was given airplane rides to the capitals of New England states and in factories of this region she saw native products being manufactured. She made a report of her trip to merchants, headed by Arthur H. Rogow of Sears Roebuck & Co., chairman of the New England Days Committee, at a tea held in her honor at Hotel Statler.

Kane Birthday Sale In 8 Stores Today

Harry Kane, president of the eight Kane's stores in Eastern Massachusetts, has set aside today and tomorrow as "Kane Days," a sales anniversary founded a decade ago.

Stores will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. at 740 Washington st., Boston; 505 Massachusetts ave., Cambridge; 390 Moody st., Waltham; 9 Dartmouth st., Malden; 215 Main st., Brockton; the Super Store in Lawrence, 219 Union st., Lynn, and 1546 Hancock st., Quincy.

Harry Kane

The two-day sale will be featured by presentation of a birthday gift with every purchase, easy terms, hundreds of values and an augmented staff of sales and credit personnel to handle the increased volume of sales.

Purpose of the Kane Days was set forth by President Kane "to make new friends and to demonstrate in a practical way appreciation for patronage of regular customers."

"When plans were being made for Kane Days this year, the trend of rising production costs, which actually went into effect in September, was foreseen, and buying done accordingly as far back as June," he said. "Consequently, the home furnishings now being offered in this event were purchased at the lowest prices since 1932."

MINOR QUAKE FELT

A "minor earthquake" in the vicinity of New Brunswick was recorded at 8:37:59 (E.S.T.) last night on the Weston College seismograph, the Rev. James J. Devlin, seismologist, announced today.

One Shot, Two Hits

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 27 (AP)—Councilman M. M. Rice killed a bird and a rabbit with one shot.

The bird flew up in front of an embankment. He fired, killing the bird. The same shot also got the rabbit, which was sitting on the embankment.

U. S. FEARS EASED BY F. R. TALK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (INS)—President Roosevelt's flat assertion that there is not "the remotest possibility" of sending another American Expeditionary Force to European battlefields held the country's attention today.

Timed shortly before the Administration's neutrality bill comes to a Senate vote, Mr. Roosevelt's renewed pledge that the United States will not get involved in war was calculated to rally wavering legislators in favor of the measure.

The President spoke on the closing program of the ninth annual New York Herald-Tribune Forum on current problems, rebuking "orators and others" in and out of Congress who he said have been beating their breasts" and proclaiming against sending the boys of American mothers to fight on the battlefields of Europe."

"That, I do not hesitate to label as one of the worst fakes in current history," he declared.

"The simple truth is that no person in any responsible place in the national administration in Washington, or in any state government, or in any city government, or in any county government, has ever suggested in any shape, manner or form the remotest possibility of sending the boys of American mothers to fight on the battlefields of Europe.

3 DIE IN AUTO CRASH

WASHINGTON, Vt., Oct 27 (AP)—Three persons were killed here when their automobile left the main highway to Barre, struck a tree and overturned.

The victims, according to Sheriff O. E. Burgess, were Richard Lezer, 40, of Webaterville; Mrs. John Gibbs, 23, and her three-year-old son, Irving.

Young Republican Women Will Meet

Members of the Young Voters' Department of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts will hold their first dinner of the year, to be followed by a meeting next Wednesday evening.

The speaker will be Miss Margaret Dunn, director of the club's finance department, who will tell of her experiences in Europe following the outbreak of the war.

THE SKY RAIDERS

by Paul Whelton
Staff Writer and World War Flyer

THE tracers hit first the tail of the red Fokker triplane. Then the thin pencil line of death rises a little and runs a seam up the side of the Fokker. If you practice long enough and hard enough you can draw some pretty patterns with machine gun bullets.

The tracers open up their thin seam along the fuselage and this seam ends at the Fokker cockpit and the triplane falters, slips quietly off on a wing, rights and then begins a long, flat glide.

Except for one, the other planes pay no attention to this departure and the fight continues. This one plane follows down to earth as the red Fokker holds its glide, bumps the ground, rolls over the rough terrain and comes to rest in a shell hole, losing one wheel.

Between his knees the pilot still grips the control stick, but he is still.

He does not look at all like a boy whose mother didn't raise him to be a soldier; like a kid she made wear curls and dress in pretty white until he hated the whole thing

Between shattered goggles and his helmet there is blood. The lower jaw sags and there is blood trickling thinly and dripping from the lip. The pilot is dead.

From a point 50 yards away, Lieut. F. J. W. Mel'ersh of the British Royal Air Force, driven to earth a short time before, makes his way over the shell-torn ground on the outskirts of the ruined village of Sailly-le-Sec, looks at the pilot after he is removed from the plane.

"My God," he exclaims, "it's Richthofen!"

And thus, at about 11 a. m. on April 21, 1918, Germany's red knight, the terror of the air above the battlefields, joined the Legion of the Dead, to whose ranks he had sent so many members before him.

Far more than 100 gallant flyers had fallen victim to his snarling Spandaus above the western front, and 80 enemy aircraft were credited to him officially before he met the bullet of an unassuming, 24-year-old Canadian who was suffering tortures from a stomach ailment even as he pressed his triggers.

Baron Manfred von Richthofen, major in the German air force, leader of the famed and feared Richthofen Flying Circus with the red and red-nosed ships and the all-red leader, idol of Germany as Guynemer had been the idol of France—Richthofen had been fighting for Germany nearly four years when he met his death.

FOR nine months his fighting had been on the ground as a member of a cavalry outfit, the First Regiment of Uhlans. For many more months after that he had been a fighter in the air, for the last year a legend, a marked man whose name was to be spoken in awe by the fledgling flyers of the opposition, arriving at the front to do or die.

Richthofen himself died in one of the wildest "dogfights" the Western Front in the World War ever witnessed.

Today, in Toronto, Canada, there lives in good health a well-known business man, 45 years old, married and the father of three children—a substantial citizen of Canada.

HE is the same Roy Brown—yet, distinctly not the same Roy Brown—who awoke on the morning of April 21, 1918, at his Royal Air Force field on the Somme and discovered that the war was still on; that his dreams of the night had been all fake.

Brown felt rotten again. He had been feeling that way for the last month of 14 months he had been fighting aerial battles at the front. His stomach was all shot, and during that month practically his sole diet had been brandy and milk.

God, but he felt lousy! The nerves of his stomach were crawling like millions of hot worms. Wearily he pulled on his clothes and went out to the bar. Hot milk and brandy again for breakfast. His flight wasn't until 10:30. When would this grind ever end?

At 10:30, Capt. Brown's squadron, three flights of five planes each, with Major C. H. Butler leading, took off from the field at Bertangles and flew east at 15,000 feet.

At about the same time, Baron Richthofen, in his all-red Fokker triplane, newest and most devilish ship at the front, led his red-nosed circus, two flights of five planes each, off the ground just east of the little village of Cappy. They flew west.

After a few minutes on their course, Major Butler and his four ships split away from the formation. Capt. Brown took over the other two flights, and seconds later he saw anti-aircraft bursts two miles below and sighted four Fokker triplanes diving on two Australian photo planes.

Brown waggled his wings, stood his Camel fighter on its nose and screamed down, his mates following. All except Lieut. W. R. May of Melbourne, Australia. May, on his first flight over the lines, had been ordered not to get into any dogfight, but to ride the fringe and pick off a stray, if he could, and then bell-bend for home.

AS THE Sopwith Camels roared earthward, the Fokkers left the slow ships to face this new challenge. Then as the Britons began firing, new Fokkers and some Albatroses screamed down into the combat, giving the Germans a total of 22 ships against Brown's nine.

In an instant the air was filled with flashing, darting machines, the shrieking of tracer bullets, chattering of machine guns—and, above all, the din of 31 motors and that additional of Lieut. May, cruising the edges.

Still dutiful, May picked out a stray and the baby of the squadron poured lead, saw the Albatros roll over, then burst into flame and smoke and plunge down.

No shaver of orders was Lieut. May. Regretfully he winged over and started for home in a long dive as Brown rocked out of the general melee, just in time to see the departure.

Also did Capt. Brown of the sick stomach see an all-red triplane come hurtling down from above, like a hawk after a lost and running chicken. Twin lines tracer smoke spewed from the Fokker's Spandau barrels.

Young Mr. May turned a brief, startled glance to his rear as the bullets sang by, then poured on the coal. Melbourne seemed far away. Splinters ripped from his struts and whisked off. The young junior suddenly kicked his rudder, pulled hard on the stick and went up and over, rolling and dodging.

His red nemesis folowed almost his exact curve. Zig-zagging, viraging—bringing every acrobatic trick he had learned in school into play. May was unable to shake that scarlet leech hanging to his tail, pouring lead until the British ship was riddled.

In swift pursuit, however, was Brown, and with the two planes under him racing at barely 200 feet from the ground, the Canadian nosed down and dived his Camel.

BARON MANFRED VON RICHTHOFEN
Germany's Ace of Aces in World War

Slightly above and to the right of the Fokker, Capt. Brown presses the trigger of his Vickers gun. The tracers first hit the tail and then ran that little seam up the fuselage.

Baron Manfred von Richthofen, robbed both of his prey and his supposedly charmed life, dipped in his last glide to earth in what, except for the jagged condition of the ground, would have been a perfect landing—with a lifeless hand on the stick.

Neither Brown nor May knew then that the Boche in the all-red triplane was Richthofen.

The Canadian, who was to become world famous when that electrifying news spread, didn't care about fame now. He was sick as he wrote out his report. His stomach was kicking up again.

MORE brandy and milk, and he made his regular afternoon patrol over the lines, still unaware of his impending fame. For that matter, he was unaware of anything. That patrol is a blank in his mind.

Upon his return he landed his Camel but field attaches found him unconscious, still strapped in the seat. For three weeks he was delirious in the hospital.

Only when his mind cleared did he learn that Richthofen was the man in the red Fokker. Three weeks after that, assigned to instruction duty in England but flying again before he should, Capt. Brown fainted in the air and crashed, suffering nearly fatal injuries.

With the war's end he was still invalided—with Richthofen down as No. 14 and the final victim on the Canadian's official list.

And in the little town of Schweidnitz, in German Silesia, sat the "Liebe Mamma" to whom the baron had written so frequently of his exploits, so vibrantly of the feeling that he was invincible, that he would last out the war and return when the Fatherland was triumphant.

She sat there, the "Liebe Mamma" who didn't raise her boy to be a soldier and who had kept him girlish as long as she could, because she had no real little girl, and there remained to her, in the loneliness of the great house, only his medals and his wreck souvenirs, the letters he had written and the silver cups he had made for each of his victories, with their descriptive records engraved on the cups.

To her, Manfred, elder of her two sons, was born May 2, 1892, in Breslau, another in the line of Prussian junkers from a fighting stock that won its title of baron far back in the 17th century.

He was 20, when in the fall of 1912, after eight years in the Cadet Corps, he was commissioned in the First Uhlan Regiment. Nearly two years later he was stationed with his regiment in a little Silesian town, six miles from the German-Russian border, when war was declared in August, 1914.

THAT night the regiment invaded Russia and took possession of the village of Kielce, a few miles east of the frontier. A few days later the regiment was suddenly whisked out of Kielce and hurried across Germany to the outskirts of Arlon, in Belgium. From thence they were sent to Verdun, where he won the Iron Cross, the first of many decorations.

In May, 1915, chagrined over an order detailing him to the Service of Supply, out of the activities, he applied for a transfer to the Flying Service and it was granted

When he won his brevet he was sent to the Russian front for bombing, reconnaissance and enfilading.

In August, 1915, however, Richthofen was shifted back across Germany and to Ostend, Belgium, for training with huge, new night bombers. There, in September, as an observer, he shot down his first enemy plane, a two-seater Farman which fell behind the enemy lines and which was not accredited.

By now, Richthofen's ambition was to become a pilot, a pursuit pilot. His first pilot, who had now gone into pursuit work, trained him and in October the baron flew alone for the first time, but made a crash landing.

However, he persevered and in December was notified that he had passed his pilot's requirements. Three months later he was flying over Verdun, a member of the Second Fighting Squadron, but in mid-summer he was transferred to Jagdstaffel No. 2, a new combat unit organized under command of Germany's famous ace Oswald Boelke, for work at the Somme.

That same month, Richtofen scored his first official victory. With Boelke and three more of the Jagdstaffel, Richtofen encountered a formation of seven Royal Flying Corps machines, bombers escorted by two-seater fighting ships.

As Richtofen followed the great Boelke into the fray the nearest British ship to the baron was a large biplane piloted by Second Lieut. L. B. F. Morris a Lewis machine gun in front of him, and with Lieut. T. Rees in the observer's cockpit with a Lewis gun on its turntable pivot.

At 50 yards from the foe, Richthofen fired with his twin guns, shooting through the propeller. Observer Rees blazed back and the skittish baron immediately dived, but zoomed up again and regained his position above and at the rear.

Again Rees fired and again the baron flicked his Fokker out of the line of tracer bullets.

TWISTING and turning, the young but experienced Morris gave his observer excellent opportunities to use that deadly Lewis gun. The baron switched tactics. Diving into a cloud he spun down two turns, three turns—popped out again.

Now Morris, the baron observed, was straightened out and apparently believed the enemy gone.

With the craft of an alley cat, Richthofen found the blind spot of the English machine, below and slightly to the rear.

Steadily in that blind spot, where neither gun nor eye could reach, Richthofen climbed, and then he pressed the triggers of the twin Spandaus.

In long, then ever tightening spirals, the biplane headed for

Weld Clinic of Cambridge Prevents Sickness

CAMBRIDGE MORTALITY RATE LOW

Cambridge's infant mortality rate is now one of the lowest in the country and today the "palm of praise" was awarded to the Weld baby clinic for making it so.

John D. Crowley, secretary of the Cambridge Board of Health, announced that 12,500 visits were made to the clinic in 1938 by 2035 different babies, the result being an all-time low in death.

There are eight clinics in the city, each of them manned with a child specialist and two nurses. Only healthy babies are examined.

Each tiny visitor is weighed and thoroughly checked for possible ailments. Individual diets are prescribed and nurses visit homes regularly to watch the progress of their "patients."

Clinics are held twice a week, generally Tuesday and Thursday, in conveniently located schools. Babies admitted must all be over 3 years old.

trip around Scandinavia into the North Sea.

The remoteness of the Murmansk hindered efforts of Laurence A. Steinhardt, United States ambassador, to keep in touch with developments. He had received assurances, however, that the American crew was safe aboard the City of Flint.

Meanwhile, Tass, official Soviet news agency, reported that the new National Assembly for western Ukraine, part of the former Polish territory occupied by Russia in connection with the German invasion, had elected Joseph Stalin as honorary chairman.

The first meeting of the Assembly was held yesterday at Lvov (Lwow).

Flint Radio Man Describes Capture

BERGEN, Norway, Oct. 27 (AP) James McConnochie, radio operator of the American freighter City of Flint, declared today the ship's German prize crew took her through ice-strewn waters with explosives planted in the engine room while they flew the Danish flag and repainted the ship's name to "Alf."

McConnochie, a Scot, gave the German captors the slip when they stopped at Tromsoe, Norway, to unload survivors of the British ship Stonegate, sunk by the raider that took the Flint captive.

Mixing with the British sailors, he managed to get ashore undetected and came to Bergen with them.

His story to the Bergen newspaper Aftenbladet after his arrival here said the City of Flint sighted a foreign warship Oct. 9 which at first was assumed to be British or French but proved to be the German pocket battleship Deutschland.

FREIGHTER HALTED

The raider halted the freighter, placed the survivors of the torpedoed British ship aboard and then proceeded to check the cargo, finding "a considerable quantity of oil."

Declaring this was serious, the German commander said he would not sink the ship, McConnochie related, but placed 18 Germans on board to take possession.

The Scottish radio operator, who had been the first man to pick up the distress signals from the ill-fated British liner Athenia, said that the City of Flint thereupon began a slow, "unpleasant" trip northward through "terribly cold" seas.

En route, he continued, the German crewmen planted a heavy charge of explosives in the engine-room, prepared to blow up the ship if the encountered trouble. Later they entered an area of floating ice and the Germans painted out the freighter's name, substituting "ALF" for "City of Flint" and painting the Danish flag on the side.

U. S. CREW TREATED O. K.

McConnochie said it was untrue there was anything wrong either with the engines or navigation facilities of the City of Flint.

The ship pursued a dodging course north and east, keeping a sharp lookout for British and French warships but none were encountered.

McConnochie said a water shortage developed that forced the freighter to put in at Port Tromsoe. There the British survivors were permitted to land. The radio operator said that because of his manner of speech he was able to mix with them and land successfully.

McConnochie said that the American crew members, although worried by their plight, were not treated badly by their German captors and that nothing untoward had happened to any at the time he slipped off the ship at Tromsoe.

NAZIS POUR MORE MEN INTO LINE

PARIS, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Germans have moved tanks and rapid-fire artillery into attacking positions on the Siegfried line, French military observers reported today.

French patrol reports indicated that the Germans facing the Maginot fortifications were in "jump-off" spots all along the northern flank, but an intense cold snap proved an ally to the French, who said they were all set for a German offensive.

The cold and flooded regions in some parts of the front caused French observers to doubt that a German drive would be immediate, but they said they expected it as soon as a rift in the weather appeared.

Reconnoitering units skirmished in snow, sleet and icy rain along the 100-mile northern flank last night, getting some artillery support as they wallowed in the ice-crusted mud.

The French morning communique said that during the night there was "local activity of reconnaissance units."

The sudden rigid control of German communications with Belgium and the Netherlands also led the French to suspect that a big German push was imminent.

(From villages along the Netherlands-German border came reports of noticeable troop concentrations at that end of the Siegfried line.

(Although German fortifications opposite the Netherlands town of Limburg still are being constructed, with forts and pill-boxes disguised as picturesque village huts, the Netherlands witnesses said they could clearly see many marching men and troops in automobiles coming up to the front.)

French reports also said huge numbers of Nazi bombers and fighting planes were being brought up to airdromes just behind the Siegfriend line.

British Recruit Still More Troops

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Great Britain, grimly tuning her war machinery for the winter campaign against Germany at sea and at home, opened her lists today for volunteers in the first general call since the war began Sept. 3.

Enlistments only of specialized classes have been asked previously. Age limits were set at 22 to 35 in Great Britain and 20 to 35 in Northern Ireland. Those accepted will be ordered to report Nov. 15.

Hints in the Nazi press of broadening air attacks, which so far have been confined to warships at anchor or on convoy, and intensification of surface and submarine raids on Allied shipping were regarded by the British as pointing the direction the winter warfare will take.

Naval sources said it was probable that German surface craft other than the pocket battleship Deutschland and whatever other raiders are already at sea could slip through the North Sea blockade.

Visibility in that area even on the clearest winter day is only five miles.

Finns Put Pact 'Up to People'

HELSINKI, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Finnish people have been assured that theirs will be the final decision on any bargain with Soviet Russia.

Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko, addressing a patriotic meeting last night in the State Theater, appealed for confidence and courage, saying, "the people of Finland must decide their own future and choose their own path."

Erkko's speech, the longest exposition of the situation since Russia started the negotiations, referred to countries "wiped off the map of Europe," but mentioned no names.

The foreign minister said "relations between Finland and the country which inaugurated these questions are capable of improvement."

The striking bedroom set illustrated is another in the series of quality values that Summerfield's has drastically reduced in its campaign to put fine furniture in the popular price class.

All four spacious pieces are enriched by gorgeously figured burled walnut veneers combined with selected cabinet woods.

Notice the graceful, flowing waterfall styling, the oversize plate glass mirrors; the smart serpentine effect of the fronts.

The new "show case" vanity has a full length mirror and a blue glass compartment with a sliding glass door for displaying fancy perfumed bottles or toilet articles. When the blue glass compartment is lighted with a touch of a button the resulting effect is extremely beautiful.

Dustproof construction and center drawer guides throughout assure lifelong wear.

Auto Makers See New Record Set

"As the motor industry goes so goes American prosperity" . . . While that is not yet an accepted axiom it might well be . . . For the peaks and valleys of auto output are very largely those of general trade . . .

PROJECTION . . . Of past similarities into the future means further good gains all around . . . The labor question alone stands in the way of a 3,800,000 unit output for 1939, in the opinion of trade observers . . . With most also thinking in terms of larger figures for next year . . . An idea of the bullishness exuded by authoritative analysts is found in fourth quarter expectations . . . Production estimates run to around 1,250,000 units . . . The highest in history . . With another record breaker probable in the first four months of '40

SEEKERS . . . Of interesting factual sidelights on the motor industry's ability to stimulate general business have an almost inexhaustible subject . . . Last year, for instance, was the poorest since 1933 . . . It was 47 per cent under the 1937 level . . . Yet automobile manufacturers paid 304,000 workers an average of $8,650,000 weekly . . . To make 2,655,777 automobiles and trucks worth $1,629,000,000 . . . Impressive figures . . . And in a year accounted slow by the industry . . . And with a roughly 40 per cent gain in output expected is it small wonder "As the motor industry goes so goes American prosperity" . . .

MARKET ACTION . . . Is beginning to make good on some of the promises it made two weeks ago . . . And it is largely through the efforts of motor stocks . . . We have pointed out here recently that aviations and other groups ambitious to take over leadership lacked the appeal of old line leaders . . . They tried hard but failed to inspire trading and speculative forces as motor and steels can . . . When the former brightened the market did . . . And if they continue new highs all around are to be looked for soon . . . The rails may need a bit of time to swing around . . . But if they hold even keel it will be about all industrials need to make a 10 point splurge in here . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . New highs by the averages is the big need of the moment . . . Speculation will not blossom out until they are registered . . . Solely because of fears foreign selling may not have lifted . . . The Boston & Maine report stirred up interest in the prior preferred . . . And unless we are far wrong the stock is cheap . . . American Machine & Foundry is making good on some of the things said of it here several weeks ago . . . So too is Curtis Wright . . . Glenn Martin is expected to show $2.50 a share this year . . . That is down from the $4 given elsewhere . . . And the reason is plant expenditurers plus business lost because of the embargo . . .

• • •

BOARDROOM BRIEFS . . . Add to General Steel Castings comment of yesterday: the preferred is convertible . . . And with the 1st 5½'s is worth looking over . . . Cotton futures are having hard sledding at current prices . . . One advisor thinks a 30 to 40 point reaction is needed . . . Then purchase for investment is suggested . . . For the benefit of those inclined toward sugar as a war speculation we note Manati Sugar 4's of 1957 . . . Speculative with somewhat less risk than common stocks . . . Sugar is still highly susceptible to war nets . . . Even though Cuban release of 300,000 tons assure ample supplies . . .

Denies Using 'Club' on G. M. Car Dealers

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP)—A vice-president of General Motors Acceptance Corporation testified at the General Motors anti-trust trial here that at no time did he "know of any instructions being given GMAC branch offices requiring dealers to use GMAC financing for retail paper if GMAC was used for wholesale financing."

The witness was Nelson C. Dezendorf, one of the 17 GM executives indicted along with the parent corporation, GMAC and two other affiliates on charges of violating the Sherman Act by coercing dealers to handle credit sales through GMAC.

From 1929 to 1938, inclusive, GMAC obtained the highest percentage of new car time paper in 1936 with 77.4 per cent and the lowest in 1932 with 74.4 per cent, Dezendorf said.

In used car sales, he related, GMAC obtained the highest percentage of time paper in 1937, 57.7 per cent, and the lowest in 1932 with 46 per cent.

Dezendorf testified that in 1927, a typical year, 50 per cent of new cars were sold for cash and 50 per cent on time.

Buyers Fail To Appear For Stocks

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Leading issues failed to connect with buyers in today's stock market and dropped fractions to around a point.

Off most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Phelps Dodge, duPont, International Harvester and Great Northern.

A few rails, including Santa Fe and New York Central, were resistant.

Brokers attributed the dip to disappointment over yesterday's final hour failure to carry through a rally under the leadership of the carriers. Many traders who bought on the morning bulge, thought it over during the night, they said, and decided to lighten commitments until some definite trend was discernible.

The Amsterdam market showed some improvement but prices were irregular in London. Commodities were mixed and bonds uneven.

Points involved in boardroom discussions included the Dun & Bradstreet estimate that retail trade for the week averaged 8 to 12 per cent better than the 1938 comparative.

Demand, it was asserted, was of a general character, with clothing and accessories volume leaders but "no weak spots in other merchandise lines." Determined resistance to price increases was encountered, save that there was little reaction to the recent mark-up in hosiery prices.

Wholesale buying was said to be confined chiefly to replacement of depleted stocks, with buyers preferring to play a waiting game as to future needs.

In the trade it was declared orders for electric utility equipment had increased considerably, reflecting anxiety over the lengthening of delivery dates. Sixteen months were said to be required for completion of a generator, with six additional months necessary for installation.

American Airlines Show Big Profit

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—American Airlines, Inc., for the nine months ended Sept. 30 earned $964,283, compared with $48,690 net profit in the like 1938 period, C. R. Smith, president, announced today.

During the nine months period this year, the airline transported 376,506 passengers, compared with 249,396 a year ago, an increase of 51 per cent. Revenue miles flown in the 1939 period totaled 13,587,132, compared with 11,242,028 for the corresponding 1938 period.

Dredging Firm Sold

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Gen. E. M. Markham, retired chief of United States army engineers and president of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Co. of Chicago, said here his company had acquired the M. Breymann Dredging Co. of Boston. He said the purchase was a cash transaction but declined to disclose the amount.

The Great Lakes Co., Gen. Markham said, also acquired the Breymann Co.'s contract for dredging of the Cape Cod Canal.

Rail Profits Rise

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 27 (AP)—The Virginian Railway announced today its net income for September was $303,435, in increase of $318,581 above the same month last year.

Sales Contests Pay Profit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The head of one of the nation's largest life insurance companies contended before the monopoly committee that although sales campaigns and special contests for agents brought his company some "undesirable" business, advantages of such sales methods outweighed disadvantages.

Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, conceded, however, that "campaign selling" had contributed to a relatively high lapse rate on the part of his company.

He told the committee that "human beings are human beings" and that despite efforts to prevent it, some agents obtained business, despite knowledge it would lapse within a short time, in order to make a better showing during a sales campaign. However, this situation is improving, he added.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

ADVANCING the date of a big debutante dance by a month provides more complications than most people would suppose . . .

In the first place, think of how much preparation YOU would have to make to entertain about a thousand people . . . and if it's a deb party you have to consult Phil Bird to see what good date on the deb calendar is free (a "good date" is a Friday evening during the football season or early December) and check to make sure there are no big Harvard doings to reduce the stag line . . . Then you have to make sure the orchestra has no other engagement, that a club or hotel ballroom is available and a hundred and one other things which are more of a problem than they seem . . .

Debutante Sally Reed and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Reed, were in just such a predicament early this week when they discovered that the exclusive clubs at Harvard are having initiation dinners Dec. 16, the date originally chosen for Sally's debut dance . . . Club dinners are more than any deb can compete with, so the Reeds had to choose another date . . . They have decided on Nov. 17, and invitations are being mailed today for the dance which will be held in the novel setting of The Country Club garage . . .

Don't think for a minute that just because the party is to be in a garage the hospitable Reeds expect their guests to dance on greasy cement . . . A new hardwood dance floor will be laid in the huge structure, which will be decorated and converted into a festive ballroom for the occasion . . .

Chilton Club Scene of Dance

SPEAKING of the problems of planning a debutante party, Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield is going to have difficulties with our troublesome Saturday curfew law . . . She is giving a dance at the Chilton Club on Saturday, Nov. 18, for her niece, Ruth Ellen duPont (of the Delaware duPonts), and it will be heartbreaking for the youthful guests if they have to stop dancing at midnight . . . A great many people think the law applies only to public dancing places, but we understand it also applies to private clubs . . . So, while Mrs. Crowninshield is out in California, all the people arranging the party are quite disturbed . . .

Edith Shaw Makes Debut Tonight

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT B. SHAW will be hosts at a large dinner in honor of Mr. Shaw's daughter, Edith, at the Ritz this evening, preceding her belated debut dance . . . Edith was a debutante last winter, but, due to the death of her grandfather, William Sohier, plans for her debut were cancelled till this autumn . . . Her mother, Mrs. Sohier Shaw of Mt. Vernon st., is giving the dance.

Wearing a gown of lustrous pink satin, she will dine with the ushers and some of her most intimate friends at the Shaws' dinner . . . Guests will include Camilla White, Lilian Fernald, Jean Saltonstall, Anne Phillips, Alicia Clark, Justine Hooper, Christine Lowell and attractive Leslie Lindsey, daughter of the Kenneth Lindseys of Culworth House, Banbury, England . . . Out-of-towners Susanne Wilson of Philadelphia, Tracy Pennoyer and Peggy Harper of New York are here for the festive occasion, and other dinner guests will include Mr. and Mrs. Leslie B. Soule, Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Hutchins, Anne Pearmain, Cynthia Sortwell, Eleanor, Joan and Gertrude Shaw, cousins of the hostess; Ann Soule, Clara Jackson, Margot Clark, Mary Hutchins, Clement Burnhome, Philip Thayer, Dr. Francis Cheever, Roger Hooper, Jr., John Chapin, Jr., Mark T. Wendell, Duncan Longcope, Augustus W. Soule, Jr., and many others . . .

Football Fans Make Merry Tonight

HARVARD-DARTMOUTH celebrators will find plenty of places to dance this evening . . . one big party is being held at the Copley-Plaza, where Robert Benchley, Jr., Mark Hollingsworth, Galen Stone, Robert Chick, William Sprague Hodgson and many other Harvardians will usher . . . The boys have invited Mary Martin to drop in at their party before she starts her round of pregame festivities . . . She's a musical comedy actress, now appearing in town, and a popular favorite of all the collegians . . .

Arlington Girl Weds

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Mahoney of East Arlington, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Edna, to James Edward Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Carter of Arlington Heights.

Rev. John F. Broderick performed the ceremony in the Immaculate Conception Church, North Cambridge.

Serving the bride on her wedding day were Mary Boyle and Agnes Mahoney of Arlington and Margaret O'Connor of Walpole.

Charles Jones of Mattapan was Mr. Carter's best man and John Mahoney and Paul E. Carter, brothers of the bride and bridegroom, served as ushers.

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

Tested and Approved by the Good Housekeeping Bureau

DOES TOMATO PASTE CONTAIN VITAMIN C? | DOES IRRADIATION PRODUCE VITAMIN D?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Tomato Paste Contains Vitamin C.

"Will you kindly inform me as to the vitamin content, especially C, available from tomato paste – the concentrated puree of tomato, which is available in 6-oz cans? Can it be used as a good source of C in a low-cost balanced dietary?"

A. B. L.

We have no assays on this product showing its actual vitamin C content. The method of its preparation would affect such content, but even though the method failed to utilize all the precautions against destruction of this factor, tomato is so rich a source of the vitamin that the paste would be bound to retain a considerable quantity of it.

I believe that where cost is a factor such a material would supply a valuable contribution to the diet.

Sunlight Too Weak

"Why do foods which have been irradiated contain vitamin D, and vegetables that have been ripened in the sun contain none?" J. M.

The essential difference between artificial irradiation and sun irradiation appears to lie in the greater intensity of ultra-violet waves given off by the lamp. Ultra violet waves produce vitamin D by acting on a chemical substance called ergosterol, and a definite intensity is necessary to convert this substance into vitamin D.

Sunlight contains ultra-violet waves, but in many instances plants growing in the sun fail to develop as much vitamin D in a season as is producible by a few seconds of lamp irradiation. The sun waves may lack the potency for the chemical conversion of the provitamin into vitamin D.

'Sleeping Baby' Dead at 2 Without Waking

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 27 (AP)—Little Stephen Howard Miles, who slept continuously since he was born two years ago, is dead in a hospital here.

The child, son of Mrs. Howard Miles of Albany, lived two years, one month and four days although physicians held little hope for his recovery since a short time after birth.

Dr. Frank J. Williams, who treated the child, refused comment. Nurses, however, said he suffered from an "extremely rare" type of sleeping sickness.

FREED ON VT. KIDNAP CHARGES

NEWFANE, Vt., Oct. 27 (AP) - After deliberating 22 minutes, a superior court jury returned a verdict of innocent tonight for Mrs. Blanche Almstead and her cousin, Harold J. Wright, of Webster, Mass., charged with kidnaping three-year-old Richard Allen Woodbury Estabrook.

The couple were arrested last month upon the complaint of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodbury, of

Blanche Almstead Harold Wright

North Westminster, who have cared for the child since shortly after it was born out of wedlock. They charged that Mrs. Almstead and Wright had permission to take Rihard for a two weeks' visit but failed to return him.

Leaving the courthouse, the couple kissed and parted. Wright went to Brattleboro, where he waived extradition to Massachusetts where he is charged with non-support of a wife and minor child living in Sudbury.

During the trial, Wright testified he had two children, while Mrs Almstead said she had a husband in Massachusetts.

Young Richard remained in the custody of the Woodburys.

Revere Legion Installs Browne

Installation ceremonies has Henry J. Browne, commander-elect of Revere Post, American Legion, will be held tonight at the post's headquarters, Revere.

The new head of the Revere post is well known in local fistic and wrestling circles since 1914-1915.

Legionaire Browne is present soldier's relief commissioner of Revere and prominent is local governmental affairs.

One of the objects of the new commander during his term of office is to arrange a "Revere Day," to take place during the national convention of the American Legion to be held in Boston next September.

It is also hoped by Commander-elect Browne to stage a championship boxing match at Revere Beach which will attract nation-wide attention.

Mayor Kane Rests Hope on Election

Mayor William E. Kane of Woburn, a Democrat, who lost the Democratic nomination to Henry M. Leen, chairman of the Woburn school committee, by 164 votes, will not demand a recount, but is satisfied to run as a Republican candidate he said today.

He explained that the city would not pay for the services of the three police reserve officers watching the ballot boxes.

"I would rather spend the money to buy milk for children than cause it to be used in a recount," said Kane. "Any corrections in the count of votes will be made on election day."

Tars Aloft, on Land Color Hub Navy Day

Because of the limited national emergency proclaimed by President Roosevelt, the Boston Navy Yard was closed to visitors today, but naval fliers led off the celebration of Navy Day by a formation flight and maneuvers over the city.

This demonstration preceded exercises at the Parkman Bandstand on Boston Common in which prominent civic and veteran leaders participated. Tribute was paid there to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt, who fought for a big Navy, as this is the 81st anniversary of his birth.

Exercises for children were scheduled for 3 p. m. in the Jordan Marsh Co. auditorium and at 7 p. m. an "All Navy" dinner at the Casa Manana was to conclude the day's observance.

In a message to John T. Nugent, chairman of the Navy Day committee of Navy Post, No. 297, American Legion, Gov. Saltonstall said an adequate Navy is "our strongest guarantee" of security and peace.

"Our determination to make the surrounding oceans our protecting fortress may well be strengthened by reflecting upon the contributions already made by our navy in preserving our nation," said the governor. "There is no more fitting time for recalling the heroic performances of our officers, men and ships.

"This occasion falls close to the anniversary of the legislative birth of the American Navy in 1775 under President John Adams. Primarily it honors the late President Theodore Roosevelt for fathering the modern American Navy."

WRECKED CREW SUB DECOYS

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 27 (AP)—Five men clinging to the wreckage of a British ship were the unintentional decoys that a German submarine used in sinking her second victim at the same spot, Capt. Norman Rice of the freighter Ledbury declared today.

Rice, with his entire crew of 25 men and the five earlier castaways, was landed here by the American freighter Crown City.

The skipper said that about 80 miles west of Cape Spartel, African promontory on the Strait of Gibraltar, the Ledbury came upon the five men amid the wreckage Tuesday morning.

Instructing his radio operator to stand by, he cautiously circled in a calm sea and finally managed to cast a line to one of the men. The others were picked up in a lifeboat.

All proved to be seamen from the Menin Ridge, sunk a little while before by a submarine.

Suddenly the U-boat reappeared and fired a shot which missed the Ledbury.

"I put the Ledbury's stern toward the submarine," said Captain Rice, and ordered an S O S dispatched.

"Thereupon the submarine commenced shelling the Ledbury heavily. I instantly ordered the crew to abandon ship and I ran to the cabin to secure the ship's papers.

"While I was doing so, a shell burst on the deck underneath, wrecking the cabin. The Ledbury began to sink, and myself and my whole crew, plus the men from the Menin Ridge, got safely into two lifeboats just as she sank, at 10 a. m., stern first.

"The submarine then approached the lifeboats and her commander shouted in good English:

"It's Winston Churchill (first lord of the British admiralty) and the money grabbers of London who want war who are to blame; we don't want war."

BULLETIN

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 27 (AP)—Germans reported today that the return of Franz Von Papen, German ambassador to Ankara, had been delayed indefinitely as a result of the British-French-Turkish mutual assistance pact. Turks said they believed that his "diplomatic failure" in not detaching Turkey from the British-French front meant his permanent recall.

F. D. Says Navy Chief Defense

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The largest and most powerful American navy in 17 years was told by President Roosevelt today that it was the nation's chief reliance to keep us out of the European war.

"The most promising way to preserve our peace lies in the ability to defend our sea frontiers," Mr. Roosevelt said in a Navy Day letter to Acting Secretary Charles Edison.

"That peace we shall strive to maintain by all honorable and advanced means. With the world in arms, this country is compelled as never before to maintain an adequate and positive defense."

Indian Assembly Resigns in Protest

MADRAS, India, Oct. 27 (AP)—The congress (nationalist party) ministry of Madras resigned today.

The Madras legislative assembly yesterday adopted a motion disapproving the viceroy's declaration of Oct. 17 on India's future. An amendment expressed approval of the ministry's intention to resign in protest.

BRITISH HEAR 1000 PLANES TO ATTACK

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 27 (INS)—Acting on information that large-scale German air raids involving mass attacks of 1000 or more planes—must be expected at any time on southeastern Scotland and northeastern England, home defense chiefs have taken thorough steps to meet and frustrate the assaults, it was learned today.

Secret plans also have been perfected to combat the raiding menace of the two German pocket battleships now known to be ranging the high seas—the Deutschland, reputed captor of the American freighter City of Flint, and the Admiral Scheer, at present dodging British pursuers somewhere off the South American coast.

Information obtained from German aviators taken prisoner after the recent raids on Britain proved that all past appearances of German aircraft on the Scottish and English coasts were mainly for the purpose of reconnaissance, and no serious effort has been made to conduct bombing attacks.

PHOTOGRAPHS FOUND

Through statements of prisoners and other information gathered by the Intelligence Service, it has been shown that approximately fourteen German aerial squadrons at various times conducted observation expeditions along the coastline. They took the most careful bearings, even going to the extent of photographing and mapping tricky portions of the coast.

Some photographs and notes have been found on the captured aviators.

The German airmen admitted under questioning that all their past activity has been a prelude to a major raid, probably during the daytime, in which great numbers of planes, variously estimated at upwards of 1000, may be employed.

According to the prisoners' statements, the raiders will concentrate on naval centers, shipbuilding yards and munitions plants.

HUNT DEUTSCHLAND

At first, it was said, the Germans will avoid the southern and southeastern coasts of England, where other bases are situated.

Berlin rumors reaching London via Amsterdam saying the Germans have 40,000 airplanes are regarded as fantastic, but it is conceded that the Reich has enough planes to spare 100 for a series of day-long raids.

Meanwhile a thrilling chase for the Deutschland and Admiral Scheer is in prospect.

The British admiralty, it was learned, is dispatching vessels which, it is asserted, are capable of out-speeding and out-gunning both these vessels, whose activities on the high seas are regarded as most serious.

'Don't Belittle Nazi Power,' Britain Warned

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Daily Express warned the British people and government today against "exaggerating the weaknesses" of Germany.

"Don't belittle the strength of Germany . . .," the editorial said.

"We should not spend our time looking for floods in the Siegfried line and looking for signs of discontent among the German people. We should look to our own power, marshal our overwhelming might against the forces which Hitler can muster . . . It is far wiser to treat Hitler as a dangerous maniac than as a harmless lunatic."

Demands $61,500 NIRA Tax Refund

Because the National Industrial Recovery Act has been declared unconstitutional, the [illegible] Woolen Co. claims a refund of $61,500 in capital stock tax paid under provisions of the NIRA, according to a suit now on file in federal court.

60 Bodies in Sunk U-Boat

DOVER, England, Oct. 27 (AP)—Between 50 and 60 bodies were reported today to have been found by British divers exploring a shattered German submarine washed up yesterday on the Goodwin sands.

The Goodwin sands are more than five miles out from the Kent coast, forming a natural breakwater to the Downs roadstead. Heavy firing was heard off the coast on Wednesday.

One theory was that the submarine was sunk either by depth charges or aerial bombs and drifted aground.

A German submarine was stuck on the sands after becoming entangled in nets in 1917.

NORTH SEA BATTLE DENIED

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 27 (AP)—Reports from Selero island that inhabitants there saw a naval battle involving planes and warships were received in Copenhagen this afternoon, but the ministry of marine denied there was any such action in the area.

The ministry said it had telephoned coast guard stations in the vicinity and heard nothing had been seen, but a lone airplane which had passed during the afternoon.

Advices from Selero island had said that inhabitants reported a naval battle had begun off the coast at about 1 p. m. (7 a. m. E. S. T.).

They said they heard heavy cannonading and saw a number of warships, mostly hidden behind clouds of smoke, and about a dozen warplanes.

The battle was reported continuing an hour later.

Swedish telegraph agency reports said activity of the German fleet in Baltic waters had increased in the past few days.

Offers U. S. New Flying 'Television Torpedo'

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Specifications for a flying torpedo operated remotely by television and "so explosive it could destroy even a large battleship," have been submitted to the War Department by the American Television Institute, U. A. Sanabria, chief of staff, disclosed today.

Sanabria, who, with Dr. Lee de Forest, pioneer radio engineer, operates the institute chiefly as a training school, said the television torpedo interested army officers at a West Point demonstration last May.

In design the flying torpedo is a small, streamlined, radio-controlled airplane, the guiding transmitter being installed in a larger plane.

"This torpedo," Sanabria explained, "has been successfully demonstrated and can function at present. However, it has one great disadvantage in its present form—the master plane and its transmitter must remain in close contact with it at all times.

"This has been shown to be necessary in order effectively to steer the projectile to its target, because the control engineer must be able to see where it is going.

"In our television torpedo, however, we mount an inconoscope or similar television tube equipped with a large focusing lens which constitutes the nose piece of the plane. Now we can transmit an image through the iconoscope in the nose of the flying torpedo to the screen in the cabin of the master plane several miles in the rear.

"The control engineer sees the image of the countryside exactly as though he were riding in the torpedo. Thus the engineer steers the projectile directly to its objective."

NAVY DAY, today's important observance, should be celebrated by every American.

It is a day sponsored by the Navy League and is observed by patriotic organizations throughout the nation.

Its primal purpose is to call attention to the glorious achievements of the American Navy and to inspire confidence in its future.

CHARLES EDISON
"Morale Never Higher"

Our Navy is OUR FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE.

Without a formidable Navy to protect our seacoasts an effective blockade against our sea-going commerce can be established.

Without a formidable Navy we are open on both coasts to bombardment.

We are the second naval power in the world today.

We should be the FIRST and if plans now afoot are not halted by "little American" minds we WILL BE the first.

Today, with 325 ships, with a tonnage of 1,083,330, and 87 boats building or for which appropriations have been made, every American can be proud of our Navy.

Charles Edison, Acting Secretary of the Navy, assures the American people that "never before has the morale, material condition and state of the Navy been higher."

It is, in fact, today, as it should be, ON ITS TIPTOES.

Mr. Edison's statement gives us this reassuring picture of why the millions of Americans living on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts can sleep well o' nights:

"The building program is progressing satisfactorily with the co-operation of labor and industry. Although some few obstacles have been encountered in our shipbuilding program, all have been overcome and the new ships going into our fleet are a tribute to all who have contributed to their building.

"The Navy wishes the Merchant Marine continued success in its achievement of a status which conduces to the nation's prosperity in peace and provides an added degree of security in the unhappy event of war.

"I commend to the American people the fidelity, the devotion to duty and the zeal of the officers, men and civilian personnel of the Navy. Their service to the nation is characterized by unswerving loyalty. Given adequate equipment, I have the utmost faith that, if the need should arise, they will defend our shores and our heritage in accordance with the best traditions of the Navy."

PUT YOUR FLAG OUT TODAY! Take down from your bookshelf your American History and read again of the daring deeds of the ONE UNDEFEATED NAVY in the history of the world—THE AMERICAN NAVY.

Read once again of the exploits of John Paul Jones, of Dewey, of Farragut, of Perry, of Decatur, of Preble.

These were ALL defenders of LIBERTY, not aggressors.

Today is not only Navy Day. It is, this year, DEFENSE DAY also. Let us salute our Navy and pray for PEACE—Peace for us, peace on earth and good will to all men.

THE WAGE-HOUR LAW, now effective, concerns more persons in Massachusetts than in other states.

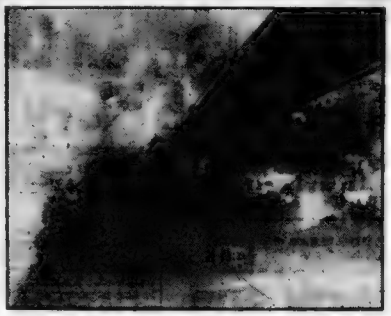
According to an estimate released in Washington, 643,200 of our people are affected.

Ranking second in the official tabulation is North Carolina, where 322,200 workers are covered by the statute.

But this is not the major difference. Here, the government finds 19,800 men and women who receive less than 30 cents an hour.

In North Carolina, where only approximately half as many individuals are listed as beneficiaries, there are 60,600!

ABOVE THE CLOUDS



THE clouds like snowbanks far below appear . . . the sun, a silver disc, more faintly glows . . . A realm of silence, cold and bleak and drear . . . the earth nowhere in sight, and no wind blows.

A tiny glow-worm nears, and through the sky . . . ghostlike, the stratosphere ship flashes by . . . brashly invading Nature's last frontier . . . And as the gods the bold intruder scan . . . powerless to act, powerless to interfere . . . do they resent the arrogance of man?

Paul T. Gilbert

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

"REPATRIATING" is a pleasant euphemism for violent transplanting of human societies. Probably there is nothing more poignantly sad in the mounting tragedy of the news than all this wrenching of people from their homes, their age-old customs and associations and, in many cases, their families and their friends.

The Germans are making compulsory the return of many thousands of persons in the Baltic states. This is the beginning of the forcible reclamation by the Reich of many other thousands of German blood throughout Central and Eastern Europe, definitely announced as a detail of Hitler's outreach to the south.

The Russians are shifting the Poles around like so much livestock. Probably never in the history of the world was there so great a degree of enforced migration, actual or impending.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT definitely recognizes the vast, impending re-arrangement of great populations in his address to the Intergovernmental Committee of Political Refugees.

The last world war left many men, women and children without a country. The staggering problem of what the legacy of human flotsam will be when the guns die down this time is already to the fore.

The President sees from 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 persons, of divers nationality, race and religion, set adrift in this new holocaust, and indicates that Africa, the Americas and Australia may, by diligent planning, provide new domains of life and hope for them.

EDWIN C. HILL
Pities Today's "Evangelines"

Between wars, the science of "economic geography" has been put forward. Back of the present activity of the Intergovernmental Committee, there is a deal of profound study and research, new and novel explorations of the hitherto hit-or-miss allotment of the peoples of the earth to this or that domain.

Much of the mess and muss of the centuries has come either from too many of us being in the wrong place, or being too violently dislodged.

The above is worthy and, we hope, fruitful research, but one cannot escape the gloomy thought that a savage war makes all such pondering merely academic.

SOPHOCLES speaks of the "giant agony of the world." Great accumulating of anything, every misery, strike our sensibilities less violently than any small instance. We shudder at a bit of offal in the road, but feel no revulsion from a mountain of guano. Only in its personalized aspect is our deepest sympathy stirred.

It is not just a pro forma 'ear that we shed for Pierre and Evangeline. We have "sympathetic identification" with their suffering. And there was a ruthlessly enforced migration.

It was in 1603 that the French founded their colony of Acadia in Nova Scotia, and 110 years later when, with the sanction of the treaty of Utrecht, the British scattered the Acadians.

We know what that meant when we read "Evangeline," perhaps better than when we read these impersonal news accounts of Finnish families of seven-centuries residence being carted off to Germany.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

MUNCIE, IND., Oct. 27 — I spent from 1:45 until 4:30 at the Herald-Tribune forum in New York City Wednesday afternoon. The keynote speech was given by Dr. Conant of Harvard, and then there were a great many able, clever speakers, all pointing up the central theme, "The Challenge to Our Democracy."

The speech which seemed to me the most sane and sensible for this particular period was made by John Lord O'Brien. He stressed the fact that in the World War there had been much hysteria and that in many ways we had found ourselves unprepared to meet the demands of the war situation, but stated that at present our laws and our administrative set-ups were quite capable of meeting our present situation.

He felt we needed to remain calm and go about our daily business unafraid.

I was sorry to have to leave without hearing the concluding speakers, particularly Mrs. William Brown Meloney, but I was taking an evening train and had a guest waiting for me at the apartment, so I dashed back there and spent the next three hours very pleasantly before getting started on my lecture trip at 8 p. m.

MISS THOMPSON and I slept late this morning. When there is no real reason for rising early, it always gives me a rather luxurious feeling to be late for breakfast.

Rain greeted us in Muncie, Indiana. I am afraid I shall not see a great deal of this city, which was made famous as the original "Middletown," a book very widely read and which everyone with an interest in average American life must have found an interesting study.

FIRST LADY CHATS WITH YOUNG WOMAN FRIEND
Visits Indiana's Muncie, the Original "Middletown"

After a short press conference we started on our mail and the necessary unpacking for the evening. Shortly, Mr. Sterling, of the NYA, appeared to show me some photographs and to tell me something of their work in this area.

NYA seems to have done a good job of interesting the communities in their youth, which is, after all, one of the best things that can come out of this work.

When we went down to luncheon, Mr. E. Connor, a regional supervisor on WPA, greeted me. While Miss Thompson and I ate our lunch, he brought four other WPA officials to sit around our table and talk to us. They have not yet started on their new program of workers education, which I talked over with Miss Kerr, Miss Hilda Smith and various other interested people, before I left Washington.

I hope before long, however, a real workers service program will be under way. Adult education has suffered greatly from the 18-months cut, but I gather that everyone concerned is proud of the projects as a whole and the way they have been run in this State.

YOUNG ACTOR IRKS DOWLING

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—Eddie Dowling, who appears in William Saroyan's new play, "Time of My Life," has found himself involved in many complications because of changes in directors, Saroyan's theatrical inexperience, etc. . . . Will Lee, who has one of the minor roles, took issue with Dowling in one matter . . . "Listen, son," said the veteran Dowling, "I've been in show business for 30 years" . . . "Well, so have I," replied Lee, "—the past three weeks!"

SALLY CLARK, sister-in-law of John Roosevelt, went with her husband, George McLanahan, to the office of a jeweler friend. She examined some rings and trinkets—and then the jeweler said: "Now I'll really show you something unusual" . . . From an inner room six guards brought a small, white box, opened it—and revealed a huge diamond, appraised at $150,000 . . . Sally was so startled that her chewing-gum dropped—onto the rare gem. The guards immediately huddled around the diamond, while Sally lamented: "Those were two good pieces of gum" . . . "But this diamond's worth $150,000," the jeweler moaned . . . "Well," Sally replied, "now it's worth $150,000.02."

MRS. McLANAHAN

THE FATHER of Mary Jane Walsh came from Davenport, Iowa, to see her perform in "Too Many Girls" . . . "I'm supposed to bring Al Smith to the show next week," he told her later, "but now I'm afraid I can't do it because of your role" . . . "I have a wonderful role," Mary Jane assured him . . . "But you portray a divorcee," her father sighed, "and so I can't bring Smith to see you" . . . "You knew that as far back as last summer," the girl reminded him, "and you didn't object" . . . "I know," he explained, "but I thought that during rehearsals they'd find out what a nice girl you are—and would change the role."

LOUIS BROMFIELD, who is living on his 400-acre farm in Lucas, Ohio, for many years has been telling his friends about the beauty of his birthplace and how wonderful it is to live there . . . Bromfield will leave Ohio next month to go to Hollywood for another movie assignment . . . "It's very strange," Jim Thurber said, "but I've met Louis in London, Paris, New York, Hollywood—and every time I see him he says: 'Have you heard? I'm living on a farm in Ohio.'"

H. G. WELLS, in making public comments about the current situation in Europe, has revealed a surprising knowledge not only of European history but of American history as well . . . None of his friends here can baffle Wells on a question of American history.

IF THE ANTI-ADMINISTRATION FACTIONS of two New England colleges become audible instead of merely articulate, the gentlemen of the press will be entitled to call it the Poison Ivy League . . . Not that they haven't called the cluster of broad-A Eastern colleges the Poison Ivy League before . . . But this time it won't be in fun, and will have more justification than a writer's desire to be smart or cynical . . . When we mention "anti-administration" we are referring to athletic administrations . . . Although, in the case of Harvard, national publicity in a widely-read weekly has been given recently to a sentiment which must be described as anti-Conant.

DR. CONANT AS EVERYBODY KNOWS is the headman at Harvard . . . It is unlikely that he intrudes much beyond an academic interest in the direction of athletics in the famous school he tosses . . . It is Bill Bingham who takes most of the raps aimed at the university's policy and actions in the matter of athletics . . . However little you read about it, there is a strong anti-Bingham feeling among many of the former Harvard footballers . . . This has existed, in some degree, in the past . . . One can remember when Colonel Dave Egan tossed a blast or two at Harvard's Mr. Bingham a few football seasons ago . . . The Colonel got some boobs for his candid reporting, but he was cheered, too

NOW WE COULD PRINT NAMES but obviously any such complete coverage of the situation would be unseemly and a breach of confidence . . . So without naming the principals, you are offered here a summary of the expressed opinions of a group of former wearers of the football H, who met for a week-end wake after the Penn-Harvard game last week-end . . . To a man, they took objections to Mr Bingham's alleged disinclination to help poor kids who are rich in athletic ability to go to Harvard . . . They got downright impolite about the subject at points in the discussion . . Bill Bingham, they said, worked his way through Exeter and Harvard . . . With these advantages he rose to his high position in the world, and would be understood read ly should he base his policy on what-was-good-for-Bill-would-be-good-for-other-kids-of-like-circumstances

THE HARVARDS WHO WERE GROUSING were upset palpably over what they had seen at the Stadium, and this doubtless colored their views concerning Mr. Bingham . . . Unanimously, however, they agreed that Saturday was the first time any of them had ever seen a Harlow-coached team look actually bad . . . The discussion reached a crescendo when all said they would join an alleged "Oust-Bingham Movement" described as being imminent . . . If there is any such movement, and this lover of peace hopes there isn't, it seems that a great deal of consideration should be given the recent declaration of intent by Harvard, Princeton and Yale toward purity in athletics . . . Perhaps Mr. Bingham has his definite orders, no? . . . The Harvard-Princeton-Yale advertisement of the onetime Big Three's honesty

BETTE AND WARNERS BURY HATCHET

By Louella O. Parsons

Bette Davis

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 Bette Davis will eat her Christmas dinner in Hollywood, ready to start work at Warners on "The Woman Brown" the last of the year. Yesterday she and Warners officially buried the hatchet and once again Bette reigns supreme as their top actress. "The Woman Brown" is the play she saw at Dennis, Mass., at the Cape Playhouse where she started her career as an usherette. At her request it was bought for her and will be her next movie.

Even more interesting than "The Woman Brown" was Hal Wallis admission to this writer yesterday that Rachel Field's "All This and Heaven, Too" would revert to La Davis. Originally bought for Bette it was later purchased with Miriam Hopkins and Merle Oberon. Also there will be no more talk of trying to persuade Katharine Cornell to coax Warners to bring to the screen the role she created on the stage in "No Time for Comedy." That too is for Bette, as well as "The Miracle," to be made at Technicolor. So ends another Hollywood battle.

DAILY STORY — Selfish Mother

I HAD ALWAYS BEEN a vain, pretty woman, with an insatiable appetite for praise and admiration. After my daughter, Anne, was born I became subconsciously jealous of her loveliness, her vibrant youth.

As she grew older I kept her dressed in childish outfits. I didn't want my friends to realize that I was old enough to be the mother of a grown-up child.

Of course, eventually, I had to relent, for I couldn't keep her in short skirts and ankle socks for the rest of her life. I don't know why I acted as I did, but I seemed to feel that Anne was robbing me of my youth. I very rarely took her places with me and was constantly nagging her, finding fault until I know I made her life miserable. My husband was easy-going, and although he loved Anne he thought me in the right always.

ONE DAY when I went into my daughter's room to berate her about some trifle I found a note pinned to her pillow. It read: "Dear Mother—Bob and I are getting married. I know I have made you unhappy. Please forgive me. I love Bob so. Don't worry. Will wire. Love, Anne."

I was dumbstruck, furious. My daughter about to be married. The possibility of my becoming a grandmother assailed me. I wept bitterly on Ted's shoulder, momentarily hating my child.

About 7 o'clock that night the phone rang, and a man's shaken, nervous voice asked for me. It was Bob. My mind whirled dizzily as I listened to the things he told me. He and Anne had been speeding . . . the car crashed . . . Anne was in the hospital, seriously hurt.

IN A FEW HOURS Ted and I were in the hospital with Bob. I was a changed woman, ashamed, nerve-racked. If only my precious daughter would be all right there was nothing in the world I wouldn't do for her to rectify my horrible jealousy. It seemed hours before they wheeled her from the operating room, her face swathed in bandages.

The doctor who operated called my husband and me aside. "She'll live," he answered the praying hope in my eyes. "She'll live, Mrs. Blake, but her face . . ." he paused . . . "her face will be irreparably scarred for the rest of her life."

LISTEN, WORLD! — By Elsie Robinson

FIRST there was the dream. She sat up shuddering, clutching at a darkness which still retched and heaved. It was preposterous, impossible! Here she was, a sensible, healthy woman, sleeping quietly in her familiar room.

And yet, she wasn't there! She was in some far bedlam of darkness, disorder and frenzied fear. Gigantic roaring of a wounded beast . . . roaring and screams and gurgling moans . . . the loom of Something tall and toppling through the night with people clinging to its sides . . . howling insanely . . . dropping . . . dropping. Then this shocked wakening.

"Just a dream!" her husband snorted, marvelling at the hysteria of a usually serene lady . . . BUT HE DID NOT SAY "DREAM" WHEN THEY WAKED TO SCREAMING HEADLINES, TELLING THE STORY OF THE SHIPWRECKED TITANIC, GIVING DETAILS IDENTICAL TO THAT MIDNIGHT MADNESS.

WHAT DID IT MEAN? What did all such flashes mean—warnings and summonses, contacts which defied all normal explanation? Coincidence? Or were they proofs, perhaps, of some unknown dimension in our human life whose rules were natural and logical as any that we knew, but whose existence was still veiled from us by fear and ignorance?

Twenty-five years ago, Dr. Charles Francis Potter, founder of the Humanist philosophy, asked himself these questions. He'd frankly flouted "all that sort of thing"; his wife and friends were also skeptical. AND YET, HOW COULD A WOMAN, SLEEPING IN HER NEW YORK HOME, SEE THINGS WHICH WERE HAPPENING HUNDREDS OF MILES AWAY?

What was the answer? He didn't know. He still doesn't know. But he has been searching for 25 years, and this month he releases the findings of that search in a small book he calls "BEYOND THE SENSES." (Doubleday-Doran, Publishers.)

THE BOOK is exactly what it claims to be—a frank Look-See into those realms which lie beyond our common and accepted functioning.

Whether or not you accept his findings is up to you. Some of the evidence may seem trivial—or chockful of mighty convenient coincidence. But at no point can you doubt its sincerity or its timeliness.

And therein lies its greatest value and appeal.

You Can be a Beautiful

Use a Complexion Brush

By ARLINE GOULD

STARTING off with a clean slate is equalled in importance by starting off with a really clean skin . . . for your beauty's sake. That's why you'll be more than casually interested in a brand new idea . . . based on sound old theories . . . of skin cleansing. It's the use of cream soap with a little oval complexion brush!

We can't say too much for complexion brushes. If you've never used one before, go gently about it at first, until your skin gets accustomed to the new sensation. When you find how it clears and stimulates your skin, you'll never do without one again!

This pair accomplish a startling trio of duties—they thoroughly cleanse, stimulate, and aid lubrication of the skin.

Pearly and light is the cream soap as it is pushed from its tube, to be spread on the brush. And how it lathers! It's very mild, without free alkali and can be used by the most sensitive skin.

First cleanse with the moistened complexion brush on a dampened skin. After rinsing throughly with warm water, a bit more cream soap is taken on the fingers and smoothed over the face for a few seconds until the creamy lather takes on the consistency of a facial mask.

Leave it on oily skin for about ten minutes, or until it dries thoroughly. On a blemished dry skin, leave it on from three to five minutes. Remove it with a cloth dipped in warm water and follow with the astringent action of a dash of cold water.

An introductory special gives you both brush and cream soap for $1.19, somewhat less than the two would cost if they were bought separately.

To learn about this departure in cleansing, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ORDER FARM DUG FOR GIRL'S BODY

for both defendants by their counsel. The little Woburn courtroom was jammed to capacity during the arraignment, and corridors outside were filled with neck-craning thrill seekers.

After the hearing, Dr. Cheng and McCue were taken to Dist. Atty. Bradford's East Cambridge office for further questioning.

Warrants against the pair were sworn out by Mrs. John Dulong of Parker st., Woburn, the girl's mother, after a truant officer's questions brought the revelation that no one had reported seeing the 16-year-old student since Sept. 23.

WILL SEARCH FARM

On orders of Dist. Atty. Bradford, state detectives and Reading officers started preliminary excavating around the Cheng home in West st., Reading. The physician's adjoining poultry farm, covering nearly 70 acres, will be searched thoroughly, Bradford asserted.

During the night, officers equipped with search lights had searched the Cheng house from attic to cellar, without avail.

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Lieut. Detective John Dempsey and Sergeant Harold Delaney took Dr. Cheng into custody at his office in Oak st., Chinatown. They booked him on Mrs. Dulong's charges at the state police headquarters at Commonwealth Pier, then took him to Woburn for questioning.

Always replying with typical Oriental calm and courteousness, the doctor was quoted by police as saying he treated the girl but did not perform an operation.

He said two men came to his Reading home and the girl disappeared with them on Sept. 23, according to police.

McCue, police said, told of last seeing Miss Dulong a few days after he took her to Dr. Cheng's Reading office. It was the 22d or 23d of September, he was quoted as saying, that the girl approached him and asked for $25, which he said he refused to give her.

John J. Lynch, a Woburn probation officer, and a social worker for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, brought the case to light after interviews with Mrs. Dulong, whose husband, a WPA worker, has a family of eight children to support.

Lieut. Detective Edward J. Sherlock, put in charge of the investigation by Dist. Atty. Bradford, later visited Dr. Cheng's home and questioned his white wife, Mrs. Caroline Linda Bosse Cheng.

HUNT MATE IN DEATH OF MATRON

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 27 (INS) Gaynor Donald Joy, son of a Troy, N. Y., collar magnate was sought by police for questioning today, following the death of his 32-year-old wife in Atlantic City Hospital.

The young and socially prominent matron was found unconscious on the bedroom floor of her home at nearby Ventnor.

Analysis of a half-empty bottle of mouth wash which was beside her revealed that it contained a small quantity of poison, according to Dr. Issaac E. Leonard, one of Mrs Joy's physicians.

Mrs. Joy never roused from the coma in which she was found before her death and efforts to locate her husband, the son of A. R. Joy, treasurer of Cluett, Peabody & Co., were futile.

Two weeks ago, according to Chief of Police Mower of Ventonor, Mrs. Joy reported her husband missing but several hours later informed police he had returned home.

Stebbins, Law Expert, Dies at 79

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 27—Frederick H. Stebbins, 79, attorney and oldest member of the Hampden County Bar Association, was dead today at his home on Bowdoin st.

Born in Springfield, he was a member of the City Council in 1887 and 1888 and was appointed by Gov. William E. Russell as a member of the commission which drafted the title registration law in Massachusetts code.

In 1893 and 1894 he was a member of the Massachusetts Land Transfer Commission. From 1919 to 1934 he was president of the Hampden County Savings Bank.

He is survived by his widow, the former Martha Rumery Adams, and a son, Frederick Adams Stebbins.

Payment Ends Maine Pulpit Strike

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 27 Under a temporary arrangement with the vestrymen of his church, the Rev. Charles Woods of Trinity Episcopal Church here has ended his pulpit strike and will resume his sermons Sunday.

Vestrymen agreed to pay their pastor nearly $200 toward $591 back salary owed him. Mr. Woods informed the congregation last Sunday that he would not preach until paid.

TO WEAR OR NOT TO WEAR

The 39th annual field day was held at Technology today to determine whether lower classmen may discard their bright red and gray ties at Thanksgiving or whether they must be worn until New Year's Day.

Light-Hearted Touch for Fall

LIVES there a girl who isn't thrilled by the look and feel of silver fox . . . and who doesn't cherish the thought of wearing it for its super-flattery? These days a smart shopper can find a silver dyed fox jacket, so soft it almost purrs, for a fraction of the cost of silver fox . . . and who can tell the difference? Not many, we wager you.

The hip-length jacket we show is a gem of the furrier's art. Silky, full-bodied skins are these, alive with the lustre of frosty silver. And only $79! Another thought to make your heart glad is a little "dressy-sports" frock of winter pastels . . . with a delightful contrast of color in embroidered seams. This comes in aqua, pink or chartreuse, in sizes 9-15, and is only $7.95!

For shopping information phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MICKEY ROONEY SMASH-HITS 'BABES IN ARMS' AT LOEW'S

Judy Garland His Co-Star

By PEGGY DOYLE

Mickey Rooney may have got in your hair in the past. In "Babes in Arms," Metro's version of the Rodgers-Hart hit musical, Rooney gets at your funnybone.

The remarkable Rooney who's a one-man show in the State and Orpheum screen attraction started a rash of hooney-playing locally with yesterday's Hub premiere of his and Judy Garland's latest co starrer.

Babes with books under their arms and their teen-age gallants, similarly encumbered, broke the customary quiet of the Orpheum with shouts of laughter and clamorous applause at every contribution from Rooney and Judy. It was a field-day for the twerps and their cutie-pies. And old part es like th' oversigned didn't have such a bad time of it either. We haven't laughed so much since "The Man Who Came To Dinner."

The runty redhead, as has been indicated, is a smash-hit all by himself in "Babes in Arms." He sings, dances, appears in black-face, false beard and mustache imitates Lionel Barrymore Clark Gable and, in a fireside chat, President Roosevelt.

He plays the piano with obvious skill, directs a kid show and even is the embarrassed half of a romantic twosome starring former "Baby Rosalie" turned glamour-girl.

His co-star, the equally talented but less bombastic Judy Garland, is quite as effective, both complementing each other beautifully as the picture's romantic team.

In the fireside sequence, Judy, knitting industriously, chats in First-Lady accents about the "My Day" column, scoring neck and neck with Rooney as an impersonator.

The young fry in the supporting cast are a talented lot, notably handsome Douglas McPhail, who has a surprisingly resonant baritone; the Jaynes girl, who'll probably turn up at the Metropolitan Opera stage one of these days, and June Preisser, who has a local playgoer following.

Charles Winninger and Grace Hayes, vaudevillian parents of young Rooney whose real-life father is vaudeville's Joe Yule, are excellent. There is a nice performance, too, by Guy Kibbee, as the judge.

Boston's Busby Berkeley directs at a brisk pace, the photography is faultless and, altogether, "Babes in Arms" ranks as a Grade-A entertainment.

The co-feature, "Those High Grey Walls," is on the dour side with Walter Connolly and Onslow Stevens getting the top billing.

Laughton Tops All His Roles in 'Jamaica Inn'

Packs Thrills

Girthy, overpowering Charles Laughton, in his latest unpretty screen portrait, completely dominates the Alfred Hitchcock-directed "Jamaica Inn."

There's hardly a trace of the master director in this Mayflower production, current on the Metropolitan screen and which we've all been awaiting so impatiently.

It's Laughton from start to finish. His evil, elegant Squire Pengallan, Regency blade by day and master criminal by night, of Daphne duMaurier's eerie best-seller of the Cornish coast, is the screen's most monstrous villain.

His leering bulk, as he swaggers pompously through this tale of cutthroats, brigands and horse-thieves who lured cargo ships to their doom on the coast rocks and looted them, is something magnificent to behold. He is at once fascinating and revolting.

Today Jamaica Inn is a respectable temperance house and haven for week-end tourists. One hundred years ago, it was headquarters for a pirate gang, captained by the malevolent Leslie Banks but secretly directed by Laughton.

Arrival of Maureen O'Hara, sister-in-law of Banks and newest Irish beauty to reach the screen, and discovery that Robert Newton, who has posed as a member of the gang, is actually a secret government operative, bring this weird and exciting story to a heart-stopping climax.

Strung up and left to die, Newton is released by Maureen and goes escape to Laughton's house. They plead with him to help them wipe out the gang. He, apparently in complete accord, betrays them.

But, with all the odds against them, the boy and girl escape, and confronted with the alternative of jumping from the ship's yardarm or being shot down, the now crazy Pengallan chooses the former way out of this vale of tears.

Not, however, before Director Hitchcock gets in a single characteristic touch. It is that wondering remark of the squire's man, Basil Radford, when he arrives to find his master climbing the ship's rigging: "What's the Squire doing up there?"

Emlyn Williams, whose thriller, "Night Must Fall," is being presented on a local stage this week, makes a menacing gangster of another day. The brutish Banks is another characterization etched in cyanide. Marie Ney, whose loyalty is not altered by her knowledge that Banks, her husband, is a thieving murderer, is to be commended for her characterization.

In contrast, "Everything's On Ice," the co-feature starring Lynne Dare, a Sonja Henie in miniature, maintains a light touch throughout. It has a cast studded with such competent performers as Roscoe Karns, Edgar Kennedy, Lynne Roberts and Eric Linden. P. D.

Midnight Show At Old Howard

Not to be overlooked is tonight's midnight show at the Old Howard, starting at 11:30, and featuring Roxanne and Sunya "Smiles" Siane in the "Queens of Bohemia" burlesque revue, boasting a cast of 60.

Globe Gives Radio Awards Tonight

The Globe stage, the management assures will be quite large enough to accommodate Tiny Sinclair and her "ton of comedy" company and the co-starring attraction, the radio amateurs. The latter are competing for prizes, with the audience serving as judges.

Poodle Wins Vaudeville Bill Honors

By HARRIS MORGAN

A black and a white French poodle, college educated, trotted off with the acting honors at the RKO Boston's opening stage show yesterday.

Members of the entertaining Clemens-Belling act, these four-footed performers jumped through hoops, from huge to what appeared to be—but couldn't—doughnut size with the ease of the man on the flying trapeze. Finally, at the behest of their magic-making master, they disappeared. Belling obligingly demonstrated to a gaping audience how it was done. A nice gesture, and appreciated by the customers.

Billing to the contrary notwithstanding, next in favor with the paying patrons and your f. o. b. reviewer were Dick, Don and Dinah tumbling and tizzy experts who broke up their impressively difficult trick routine with pleasant comedy patter. Their act may be best described as a symposium of the best acts of its kind performed with the utmost skill.

Theodore and Donosta, ballroom dancers, trip the gamut from waltz to rhumba, swinging up with some spectacular twists and twirls.

Ada Brown, generously upholstered sepia singer who once starred in "Blackbirds," was given a lukewarm reception.

The accompanying screen feature, "When Tomorrow Comes," co-starring the screen's favorite romantic team, Charles Boyer and Irene Dunne, has infinitely more class than the stage show. Their's an ill-starred romance which has an original beginning and sparkling dialogue.

RENO Rendezvous

BY LESLIE FORD

COLONEL PRIMROSE'S eyes sharpened. "There's a man named Steve Ewing been hanging around here for a couple of months. This morning when the maid was doing the next room she heard him groaning. I was down the hall and they called me, and I went in."

"Colonel, the fellow's had the life beat out of him! He's a wreck, and the place is a wreck. Two cameras in there smashed to pieces—swell cameras, too. And there's been a fire in the waste basket in the bathroom."

Colonel Primrose looked at him silently for a moment.

"Is he hurt—bad?"

"He'll live. He'll never be pretty again."

"Clem Bonner?"

Hogan shook his head.

"That's what makes it screwy. Bonner was on a plane over the Sierras when it happened. The woman in the room below heard a racket up there just after 10 last night."

Col. Primrose looked meditatively at the toe of his boot. His glance then rested casually on me, and then, just as casually, on the granite facade of his guard, philosopher and friend, Sergt. Phineas T. Buck. The side of Boulder Dam before the water flowed through it was a mobile grinning mask compared to that face.

"I don't understand it," Col. Primrose said. "Do you figure he was connected with Cromwell?"

Hogan nodded. "Cromwell's phone number was on his pad. The China boy at Tahoe says he's been up there a couple of times. It's got me beat, so far. Well, I'll be getting after it."

He went out. The silence in the room was definitely oppressive.

"I think I'll be going," I said, hastily.

I took a look back as I went out. Colonel Primrose's eyes were resting very steadily in the iron visage of his sergeant.

"You didn't tell me . . . " he began, and shrugged his shoulders.

I couldn't hear what else he said as I closed the door, but I could hear Sergeant Buck's grim voice through the door: "That bird ain't liable to talk, sir.'

EAVESDROPPING

I went along the hall to my room and tossed my hat on the bed. The door leading to Judy's sitting room was open, and I could hear Polly Wagner's voice.

"So that's that, darling. And look, Judy . . . it's not any of my business, but the trouble with you, darling, is that you just don't know anything about Life."

I stood there, just frankly listening.

"I mean, if you'd had a husband who was never . . . never himself, and who . . . well, who had everybody in the house so terrified that no servant would stay, and my Scotty got so he'd crawl under the sofa when he heard his voice, and if we had guests I never knew whether there was going to be a horrible scene . . .

"And here, just because Clem took his first wife out to lunch . . . And you know I bet—that's me going Western . . . I hope I leave that out here with the levi's and these silly boots—I bet if you hadn't had Dex Cromwell always telling you how lovely and neglected and forlorn you were, sweetie pie, it wouldn't ever have entered your head.

"Anyway, you've got that, and I do hope it teaches you a lesson. And look, Judy—is your aunt going to marry Colonel Primrose?"

I started hastily to go, and then stopped.

"Don't be silly, darling," Judy said loftily. "She's much too young, and she has much too good a time. And, anyway, what could they do with Sergeant Buck? I mean it would be like having the Great Stone Face sitting in the chimney corner. You'd go absolutely nuts."

"Well, I think he couldn't be nicer," Polly said flatly.

"Colonel Primrose?"

"No, no—the Great Stone Face."

I did move then, as it occurred to me abruptly that I had something to do besides listen to a discussion of my matrimonial prospects and possible encumbrances . . for it had been in the back of my mind even since Colonel Primrose had made one certain remark, down the corridor there in his apartment, that the more definitely those bright red-gold hairs that I'd pulled out from under Dex Cromwell's hands on the wheel of that car were disposed of, the better, and that I might just as well do it, definitely, before Colonel Primrose asked me for them again.

I picked up a box of matches, went into the bathroom, took my riding shirt off the hook behind the door where it hung under my dressing gown, unbuttoned the pocket, took out my handkerchief. And then I stood there, the shirt in my left hand, the handkerchief still in my right, holding the pocket open, staring down into it. The red-gold hairs . . . so unmistakably from Judy Bonner's bright head . . . were not there.

I turned the pocket inside out, and turned the handkerchief over and over, my heart a solid lump of ice, my hands shaking uncontrolably. The hairs were gone.

I put the riding shirt on the hook again, went back into my room and sat down by the window, trying desperately to think what could have happened, my heart still stone-cold, my head still swirling. It was still swirling a minute later when the phone rang.

It was Clem Bonner. "Grace," he said, "—would you mind coming to my room? I've got to talk to you."

I pulled myself together, trying with a supreme effort to collect my scattered and terrified wits, and went on up to his room. He was in his shirt sleeves, pacing back and forth.

"I'm going crazy," he said.

CLEM'S STORY

I sat down on the side of the bed. I couldn't tell him that in all probability I had just delivered his wife, neatly bound with her own golden hairs, over to the police, and that I was about on the point of going crazy, too.

"I've got to talk to Judy! I've got to make her understand!"

"Understand what?" I demanded.

He began pacing again.

"Everything," he said, half-desperately. "I'm not blaming her, Grace. But I was darned if I was going to let that so-and-so have her. I thought if she got out here away from him, she'd come to—I'm not blaming her for falling for him. They all did. He didn't have anything to do but hang around, riding and dancing with her, while I was grubbing away down town. I was sore at first—I didn't think she was that sort. And she isn't really. She's nothing but a kid . . . "

"And what about you and Kaye Gorman?" I inquired caustically. "Was that part of the down town grubbing?"

He glared at me.

"Yes!—I saw a lot of her, after Gorman died. There's no mystery about it, Grace! We had a lot of his private business, and we could not afford to lose it. When Kaye cashed in, half a dozen firms went after her. She came to town, and she had to be lunched and dined and so on.

"You know how it is. I had to do it when nobody else was on hand. She wasn't anything to me . . . and Heaven knows I wasn't anything to her, after we'd lost everything. Well, I tried to explain to Judy. She seemed to understand, at first, and then she got up on her high horse, and then I got on mine . . . and first thing I knew I was hearing about Cromwell every place I went.

"And then I woke up one morning and found I'd lost her.—I guess I never knew how much I . . . loved her, before that."

He stopped and stared bitterly down at the carpet.

"I was darned if that lizard was going to come out here with her. I told him if he did I'd kill him."

"And . . . he did, and you did?" I inquired.

He turned on me, his face darkly flushed. Before he could say anything there was a rap at the door.

He gave me one angry glare, strode over and opened it.

Vicki Ray was standing there, smiling, her white hat tilted back on her head.

"Hello!" she said. Then she saw me sitting on the side of the bed.

"Maybe Mrs. Latham will introduce us, Mr. Bonner," she said, and quite shyly, to my surprise. "Because I've got something to talk to you about."

I got up. Everything for the last 24 hours had made so little sense, as far as I was concerned, that this seemed perfectly real, and natural, and even obligatory.

"This is Miss Ray, Mr. Bonner," I said. "I'll see you both later."

The detective standing against the wall at the end of the corridor nodded to me as I went past. A cold shiver went down my spine, and an idea struck me at the same moment.

"Mr. Yerkes," I said—having remembered his name from the day before—"wouldn't you do me an enormous favor? It's compounding a felony, probably, but—"

I smiled as sweetly as I could manage.

He grinned dubiously. "Well, it all depends, ma'am," he said politely.

COMPOUNDING FELONY

"My niece," I said, "is out here, as you know, for a divorce. I'm very sure that she and her husband are really still very much in love with each other. If they could only see each other for a few minutes, I think it would save a lot of grief. Couldn't you go down for a drink, or something, and let him come and see her?"

Mr. Yerkes scratched his head. He was genuinely touched.

"Listen, Mrs. Latham. It ain't regular—but you tell her she can go up and see him. I ain't supposed to let anybody but her lawyer go in her room.—That young lady that was down there went in your room."

"Thank you!" I said. "She can't go for a little while—he's busy, right now."

"Whenever she's ready. I'll be reading."

I went on down the hall and into Judy's room. It didn't, as I'd known all the time, make the slightest difference that Vicki Ray was at present in Clem's room, for it took me 15 minutes to persuade Judy to go up there.

I told her, patiently, over and over again, everything Clem had said, and pointed out just as many times that he couldn't come to her, because he'd promised the police he wouldn't and anyway it was opposed to Mr. Yerkes' orders.

Then at last I watched her go down the hall, head up, only to see Kaye Gorman stealing into Clem's room.

What is the meaning of Kaye's surprise visit? Don't miss tomorrow's thrilling chapter.

2—Bids and Proposals

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS—Metropolitan District Commission, Water Division. Proposals for furnishing Timber Fender Guard in Rear of Pier No. 1, Chelsea Creek, Boston. Sealed proposals for furnishing about 115 linear feet of timber fender guard and repairing the old pier, situated in Chelsea Creek in East Boston, Mass., addressed to the Metropolitan District Commission and entitled "Proposal for Contract No. 92 M, Water Division," will be received at the office of the Commission, 20 Somerset Street, Boston, Massachusetts (until 12 o'clock P. M. Eastern Standard Time, on Thursday, the tenth day of November, 1939, and at that hour and time will be publicly opened and read. Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for two hundred dollars ($200.00) payable to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, surety, or cash to the Commission and equal in the amount of the proposal, will be required for the faithful performance of the contract. The wages paid to labor employed on the work shall be not less than the wages determined by the Commissioner of Labor and Industries in accordance with Chapter 461, Massachusetts Acts of 1935, and set forth in a schedule of minimum wages, copies of which may be obtained from the office of the Commission. Sworn copies of all pay rolls for the work shall be filed with the Commission as the work progresses. Plans and a pamphlet containing additional information for bidders, forms of proposal, contract and specifications may be obtained of Samuel E. Kelham, Director of the Water Division. A deposit of $2.00 will be required for the plans and pamphlet, and if the plans are returned with a bid or the plans and pamphlet are returned before the bids are opened, the deposit will be refunded. No warrant to be erected. The printed form must be used in making a proposal. The Commission reserves the right to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the Commonwealth. W. E. WHITTAKER, Secretary.

Listed by Make and Price

It's a fact—no sooner do the bright-and-shiny new models come into the market than a crop of excellent used car values start coming in too. People who can't resist buying the very newest models are the people who often bring in last year's (or the year before's) models in almost good-as-new condition. If you're looking for the tops in used car value, their good luck is yours. This is the time—and the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser Automobile for Sale Columns is the place to find these values.

RICHTHOFEN SCOURGE OF AIR TO ALLIES

the earth two miles below, and so great was Richthofen's eagerness to have this victim accredited that he followed down.

Five days after his first score, Richthofen knocked down a single-seater Martinsyde on the Somme. He scored his third victory on Sept. 30, a Vickers two-seater which tumbled in flames.

OCTOBER brought him three more victims and he was an ace; November saw five additional, among them the first and foremost ace of the Royal Flying Corps, Major Lanoe George Hawker, V. C., D. S. O., R. E. F. C.

Of long experience and fame, Major Hawker had cost Germany many of her best airmen. In his account of that epochal battle Richthofen wrote:

"It was fine weather when I flew away from our airdrome that day. I was in the best of for the day's fun were mutual.

"They were above me but I accepted the challenge. Being underneath and in no position to attack, I had to wait till the fellow dived on me. It was not long to wait. Soon he started down in a steep gliding dive, trying to catch me from behind.

"He opens fire with his machine gun. Five shots rip out and I change my course quickly by a sharp turn to the left. He follows, and the mad circle starts. He is trying to get behind me and I am trying to get behind him.

"Apparently the idea of landing and surrender never occurred to this sportsman, because he revealed his plans to escape by going into several loops and other maneuvers of equal folly.

"As he came out of them, I headed back for his lines, my first bullets began whistling around his ears, because up to now, with the exception of his opening shots, neither one of us had been able to range on the other.

"But the moment is coming. I am 50 yards behind him. My machine gun is firing incessantly. We are hardly 50 yards spirits and keen for the hunt. Flying at an altitude of about 10,000 feet I observed three English planes. I saw that they saw me, and from their maneuvers I gathered that our hopes above the ground—just skimming it.

"One bullet goes home. He is struck through the back of the head. His plane jumps and crashes down. It trikes the ground just as I swoop over. His machine gun rams itself into the earth and now it decorates the entrance over my door.

"He was a brave man, a sportsman and a fighter."

Yes, Major Hawker's gun decorates the entrance over Baron Richthofen's door, but it is an empty trophy. Through that door the baron passes no more.

Strips of fabric, taken from the planes of vanquished foes and bearing the machines' numbers, are on the walls.

Above the center table, which is made from parts of broken propeller blades, is a huge chandelier—the rotary motor of a French plane the ace brought down near Verdun. It has been wired and each cylinder head holds an electric bulb.

Dead eyes cannot see and the trophies are dead trophies, dead as the man who won them is dead.

(Tomorrow, the World War's most unique partnership—Frank Luke of Arizona and Joe Wehner of Everett—the balloon busters.)

In March, 1918, Germany claimed 102 aviators each of whom had shot down more than seven aeroplanes or balloons in battle, and that the total number of their victims up to May, 1918, was 1698. In the same period 43 of these aces had been killed and three were missing. Several others had been disabled and retired from the air service.

2 CABINET AIDES DIE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (INS)—Two assistants to cabinet members—Julien N. Friant, 53, special assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, and Richardson Saunders, 62, assistant to Secretary of Labor Perkins, died during the night.

Pope in New Plea For 'Lasting Peace'

to enter into discussion and avoid recourse to force or threats of force in case of delays, hindrances, changes or disputes."

The Pope acknowledged that treaties might become outdated with the passing of time. In such cases, he said, "recourse should be had to frank discussion with a view to modifying the treaty or making another in its stead."

"But to consider treaties on principle as ephemeral," he declared, "and tactily to assume the authority of rescinding them unilaterally when they no longer are to one's advantage would be to abolish all mutual trust among states."

Turning from causes of the present war to prospects of a more enduring settlement at its conclusion, the Pontiff asked whether there would be a new international order "animated by justice and by equity towards all" or "repetition of ancient and recent errors."

The hour of victory, he warned, is "the hour of temptation" and the danger exists that "settlements and decisions born in such condition may be nothing else than injustice under the cloak of justice."

The only hope for the future, the Pontiff said, was that the new order, instead of resting on "quicksands of ephemeral standards that depend only on selfish interests of groups and individuals" should be based on an "unshakeable foundation on the solid rock of natural law and Divine revelation."

The Pope recalled with sorrow the failure of his own efforts to avert war.

His Holiness said he considered it his duty to "try every means to spare mankind and christianity the horrors of world conflagration even at the risk of having our intentions and our aim misunderstood."

"Our advice, if hearkd with respect, was not, however, followed," he observed.

GRIEVES FOR POLAND

The Pope expressed especially his sorrow for Poland, saying "the blood of countless human beings, even non-combatants, raises a piteous dirge over a nation such as our dear Poland which for its fidelity to the church, for its services in the defense of Christian civilization, written in indelible characters in the annals of history has the right to generous, brotherly sympathy of the whole world."

The Pontiff promised to do all in his power to hasten return of peace. He would continue his efforts, he said, "trusting in those statesmen who before the outbreak of war nobly toiled to avert such a scourge from their peoples, trusting in millions of souls in all countries of every sphere who call, not for justice alone, but for love and mercy."

The Pope said it was the function of the state to direct private individual activities toward the common good.

"That good can neither be defined according to arbitrary ideas nor can it accept for its standard primarily the material prosperity of society," he continued.

Football Roundup: Friday's Weekly Pick

HARVARD-DARTMOUTH—Halloween, called Oidhche Samhna (pronounced Ee-ha Sow-na) in native Irish and Nutcracker Night in some northern sections of New England, begins Monday at twilight. It is associated with such popular superstitions as Harvard's hex in the annual Dartmouth game. By certain charms, said to be the use of buttered wattlesticks, powdered bat-bones and the forelock of a newborn male child, Dartmouth has maintained it's Dracula character for the last six years. During his tenure as coach, Dick Harlow has failed to drive a stake through the Green's heart and bury it face downward. He may do it tomorrow. A hard swallow for Dartmouth and a lean guess for Harvard.

AUSTEN LAKE

Boston College-St. Anselm's—St. A., the infant hercules of N. E. college football, shared double-yolked goose egg with B. C. a year ago. The herculean legend tells that while Herc was still in sanitary pants Juno, the Greek's head witch, sent two serpents to strangle him. Unterrified, the child grabbed the snakes by the gullet and K. O.'d them while his sissy brother, Iphiclus, roused the household with soprano shrieks. A long scream for St. Anselm's, one rah for B. C.

Star Spangles and Smoothies

BOSTON UNIVERSITY-WESTERN MARYLAND—The popular National lyric known as the Star-Spangled Baanner, and written by Francis Scott Key during the British bombardment of Baltimore, has put a strain on the public larynx for 100 years. Frank Key, like George Cohan in later years, meant his ditty for a music hall ballad. The original words, scribbled on the back of an envelope, are said to be in the Western Maryland archives. A say-can-you-see for B. U. and a proud-hail for W. M.

Tufts-Williams—A few years ago Ex-President Tyler Dennett made a curious crack about Williams being overrun by "nice boys," which he defined as products of private academies like Exeter, Andover and St. Marks. A "nice boy" implies a social smoothy who courts bursitis of the little finger by repetitious hoistings of a tea cup. The opposite of "nice boy," according to the generic term, is a hairy-chested vulgarian who flouts the parlor graces, rolls corn silk cigars, steals frankfurters from the butcher's tailboard and punches each other in the nose. Williams may have corrected its "nice" tendencies since Dr. Dennett went away. A deep curtsy to Williams.

YALE-MICHIGAN U.—For a team described in pre-season sport pages as "rag-tag urchin of Ivy football," Yale has risen like Phoenix from its ashes, beating Coolumbia and Army. Dicky Fond, Yale maestro, has been pilloried for resorting to smart tactics in preserving his well earned lead against the Cadets. He ordered his lads to take a voluntary safety rather than risk an involuntary touchdown by the Army. Still if Ducky had lost the game, he would now be fried in hot fat by the same authors who are now boiling him in oil. Some Halloween pumpkin money on Yale.

Fordham-Pitt—What Pittsburgh's Stephen Foster gave to the South in sentimental songs like "Way Down Upon the Swanee" the South has given back to Pittsburgh in raw, husky material. The old slogan, "Earn as you Learn," is described by Francis Wallace, agitating sport author, in his Satevepost article of the current week. One mammy song for Fordham.

Holy Cross-Colgate—Shortly after the civil war a gent named Sam Colgate mixed some floral scents with hog fat and created a toilet soap named Cashmere Bouquet. Pretty ladies loved the lather and whiskery males married the pretty ladies who forced the whiskery males to shave and shampoo. The unions thus formed by love, begat progeny who were forced to bathe and brush their teeth. So Colgate's lucky labratory smell altered the complexion of National Life. Still Colgate is being thrown out with the bath water this year. One sudsy guess for H. C.

Subway Touchdown and Heresy

COLUMBIA-V. M. I.—Eddie Collins, general manager of the Red Sox, scored a touchdown against somebody as quarterback for Columbia in 1904. Maybe it was V. M. I. Anyway Eddie took the kickoff on Columbia's 2-yard line and raced around the hot dog stand bordering the sidelines, took the Morningside horsecars for Times Square, shuttled across to the Grand Central and uptown via the Lexington subway. This put him directly behind the goal posts. A stomach laugh for Columbia, a snigger for V. M. I.

Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech—When the late-great Knute Rockne died on March 31, 1931, a nation-wide drive was started for $500,000 to rear a Memorial Field Hoouse at South Bend. Subscriptions from the four corners of the country, including newsboys' nickels and bankers' cheques, trickled in until the field house, most lavish of its kind, was built to perpetuate the memory of an immortal teacher, a kindly gentleman and a great organizer. N. D. uses football profits for academic costs. Carnegie, built and endowed by a philanthropic Scotsman, plays for pure glory. A mild and heretical guess for Tech.

Cornell-Ohio State—The "Titan" of the East against the "Behemoth" of the middle West—the irresistable force against the immovable object. The old Physics Lab answer to this is "complete disintergration for both parties. Hence a tie.

Brown-Princeton—Two thwarted, exasperated teams in a battle of frustration. A prospective further thwart for Brown.

8 HARVARD SOPHS SET TO START AGAINST GREEN

By DAVE GLUECK

Harvard's starting lineup for the Dartmouth game will not be definitely decided until after today's practice. Dick Harlow was disappointed with the showing made by several of the regulars in the Penn game.

Injuries and other difficulties have claimed some more of last Saturday's starters, so it is possible that eight sophomores may begin the Indian war when the whistle blows.

Loren MacKinney, second-year man from North Carolina, seems permanently set at left end. Mose Hallett, who had been moved to left tackle on A team, suffered a leg injury in scrimmage and will not be ready until next week.

Sophomore Vern (Mash) Miller, the Milwaukee Moloch, probably still rates Peter Else as a starter, although at this point there is not much difference in the quality of ther play.

SOPH GUARDS STAR

Dick Plaster and Chub Peabody of last years freshman team are giving the veteran guards, Lowry and Sargeant, an even fight for first crack at the Earl Blaik men and because Harlow likes fight as much as finesse, there is a good chance that they may get it.

Center Barry Ayres has completely recovered from the Penn pounding, and there is no one on the squad who can rival the hard-hitting, rangy sophomore at the pivot post.

George Headen, a third sophomore, has showed well in recent workouts and Harlow is certainly weighing his merits against those of Jeff Joe Gardella at wingback.

3 VETERANS "SET"

Nevertheless, Joe is one of the boys on the squad who remembers what a sore point Dartmouth has been in recent football conversation, and he is due for a great Saturday against the Green. This leaves only three veterans on the team who are sure of starting against the Indians.

Tom (Old Faithful) Healey will be at right tackle, Bill Coleman at blocking back, and Joe Koufman, another surprise recovery, at right end.

The Crimsons put in one of the best Thursday practices of the year. In spite of rain, they worked outside until after dark, with the white ball being used for the first time. Forty-five minutes were spent on defense against Dartmouth plays, put on by two of Skip Stahley's freshmen teams.

Pass defense, offense, kickoffs, and a driving signal drill took up the rest of the afternoon.

McNICOL FROSH CAPTAIN

After practice, the yearlings elected Don McNicol, star tailback, their captain. McNicol comes from Flushing, Long Island, and is the only high shool product on the team. His mates all came to Harvard via Exeter, Andover, or Milton.

Last week against Worcester Academy, he scored 19 points personally, and on the previous Saturday, he threw two touchdown passes against Andover. Coach Stahley claims to have the second best freshman outfit since he came north with Harlow, and it is regretted that some of the boys can't skip a grade and play against Dartmouth.

Indians Start For Cambridge; Orr on Shelf

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 27—Dartmouth's football forces left here early this morning bound for Cambridge for the annual game with Harvard tomorrow. It was announced definitely that Jack Orr, halfback, would not be able to play.

The team was scheduled to arrive at 4 p. m. this afternoon at Tufts Station, Medford, and whisk immediately to the stadium for a 4:30 workout.

Tonight the squad will stop at Belmont Country Club, where all the victorious Harvard fore do their sleeping.

B. U. FACES TERRORS IN NIGHT GRID TILT

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27—Boston University has been installed a slight favorite to whip Western Maryland here this evening when the two meet after the first time under lights at the tremendous Municipal Stadium.

The Green Terrors have lost four games in a row. The Boston eleven, though inexperienced, has come up with two victories in three starts.

Despite past records, though, Coach Pat Hanley is far from happy. The Terrors are used to arc light football, while it will be the first experience for any of his B. U. charges. The Terrier mentor insists that night football is a great equalizer and eliminates the advantage his club might have in a daylight clash.

Probably it is the fact that the game is at night that has resulted in Hanley deciding to start a completely new backfield tonight. It has named a starting quartet that averages only about 193 pounds.

This starting quartet, though, made up of Jimmy Sullivan, Johnny Connearney, Walter Williams and Jimmy Cassidy figures to make up in speed and deception what they may lose in power due to lack of weight.

Tri-Cornered Harrier Tilt On

Harvard, Dartmouth and New Hampshire harriers were to race over a 4½ mile Charles River course this afternoon in their sixth annual meeting.

The race was to start and finish at Newell boat house.

Coach Jaako Mikkola had the same team today which won the event last year, with the addition of Langdon Burwell, who has led the Crimson runners in all three races to date.

The freshmen of the three universities were also to meet over a 2½ mile course.

MEDFORD AT EVERETT HEADS SCHOOL SLATE

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

From an overflowing schoolboy Saturday card, one game—Medford at Everett—stands out head and shoulders over the field as the elevens swing into the last half of the schedule.

On the strength of its undefeated record, Medford will enter the tilt a slight favorite.

In five contests the Mystics have been equalled only once, by Brockton, and never bettered — they soared to a top ranking place in the state title chase, a place shared by Lawrence and Brockton.

EDGERLY READY

Coach Tom O'Connor's most recent start found Lynn English falling before a crippled Medford offensive that lacked the punch of Chuck Edgerly and Capt. Larry Zarella.

Edgerly has been working out with the squad all week and is expected to send Bud Mahoney back to the bench in this game in spite of the latter's grand showing in his big assignment at Lynn.

But along with the good news of Edgerly's return comes the unfavorable report that Zarella will probably not be ready for action. The stocky captain has been working lightly and will see but a few minutes' service.

EVERETT LINE STRONG

Everett, tipped out of the undefeated class by plucky Manchester Central last week, will depend on its heavy line, paced by co-captains Mario Gianelli and Tony Lucci, to stop the Medford scoring threats.

The all-star Everett backfield of Charlie Comerford, Billy DeRosa, Lou Amoross and Leo Flynn will fight to break into the winner's circle again.

Lawrence high school's threat to state honors should advance another game with the invasion of Cambridge Latin's forces. The work of John Turner, end, and John Callaghy has been especially timely and has in no small measure marked the rise of Mark Devlin's club.

Brockton should find Fitchburg a fine warmup for the remainder of its schedule at Eldon Keith Field, Brockton, with Coach Charlie Holden's group continuing among the undefeated. The offensive power of Bernie Lanoue and Billy Gold offers too much for the invaders.

WARNER DOUBLE REVERSE

Pop Warner, now at San Jose State, devised this ingenious double reverse. The ball goes to No. 1 back on the pass from center. He starts for the line as though on an off-tackle smash, then flips the ball to Back 2, who in turn gives it to No. 3. Back 4 and three men from the line come around for interference.

(This is the fifth in a series of football plays as used by famed coaches, appearing in the Boston American sport pages.)

Leahy Shakes Up Eagle Lineup For Heights Clash With Hawks

Frank Leahy shook up his Boston College lineup today for the battle with St. Anselm's at the Heights tomorrow, as he prepared to send his squad through a final light tuneup for the Hawk invasion.

Leahy's starting lineup tomorrow includes three changes from the eleven which opened against Temple last Saturday.

Leahy held a comparatively light Thursday workout during which the squad drilled on pass defense, looked at St. Anselm plays as put on by the freshmen, and sharpened its own passing attack.

O'ROURKE HELD OUT

Teaming with Vito Ananis in the opening backfield will be Henry Toczylowski, McGowan and Peter Cignetti. With the exception of McGowan that's the team "A" backfield unit. O'Rourke, fourth "A" back, will be held out until such time as the Hawks show signs of weakening.

Kerr is an in and out junior who has been sharing assignments all fall with White. Kerr will team with Capt. Ernie Schwotzer, powerful left guard.

The rest of the Eagle lineup is the same as heard the opening whistle at Fenway last week. Gene Goodreault will be back at right end and Alex Lukachik will continue as left end.

CHANCE FOR MORRO

If John Yaackous' bad knee continues to give him trouble, however Al Morro may take over at right tackle.

While Cleo O'Donnell's team will undoubtedly rely on the superlative play of Co-Capt. Ray McLean, Len Taylor, who caught two McLean passes for touchdowns against Northeastern, will return to his regular right end position and this spells trouble to the Eagles.

Holy Name Eleven Meets Gate of Heaven

The Roslindale Holy Name Boston Park League at Ellon Field, team will play host to Gate of Heaven of South Boston in a West Roxbury afternoon at division grid encounter of the 2:30 o'clock.

Corps Eleven Opens Season

There may be no First Corps Cadets-Battery A game this Thanksgiving Day, for the Battery is undecided whether it will have a team or not, but the Cadets are carrying on as of yore when they used to pack the Harvard Stadium for their annual Turkey Day classic with the Battery in the days of Dono Minot and some of the older boys.

The First Corps will open its season Sunday when it plays the Wilson Club of Brighton at Cleveland Circle at 2 p. m.

Coach of the team is Bill Ellis who used to attend Notre Dame.

Ellis has a fine schedule worked out for the team, and will have them in tip top shape by the time Thanksgiving rolls around, Battery A game or not.

Sunday's starting lineup will be: Le, Meehan; lt, Curran; lg Currier; c, Rollins; rg, Bloom; rt, Wall; re, O'Neil; qb, Lehan; lhb, Aronian; rhb, Capone; fb, McDonald.

Tight Battle In East Park Loop

With the West Division of the Boston Park League led by St Lazarus Club of East Boston, Codman A. A. and Mattapan still are deadlocked in first position in the East group as the fifth Sunday of the 1939 campaign comes up.

On Sunday, the Codmans will tackle the big Geraghty Club of Roxbury.

Mattapan is favored over O'Connell Club of South Boston in a game at Walker Field and at Dorchester Town Field the Munroe Club again will try for a win against Morris Club.

GAMES SUNDAY

Chippewas vs Scarlet White at South Boston Stadium, Monroe Club vs Morris Club at Dorchester Town Field; Mattapan Merchants vs O'Connell Club at Walker Field; Codman A. A. vs. Geraghty Club at Roberts Field; St. Alphonsus A. A. vs St Lazarus at Fens Stadium; St. Johns' vs Center Club at Healy Field; Holy Name A. A. vs. Gate of Heaven at Fallon Field.

St. John's Prep Plays Eaglets

Ted Galligan's Boston College freshman grid team returned to Alumni field for a game this afternoon with St John's Prep.

Tom McNamara was to lead a light but scrappy eleven down from Danvers today and while the preppers weren't expected to win against their big opponents the game was due to furnish competition.

Both teams were to be weakened by the loss of key men. Fred Naumentz, first string end; Mike Holovak, regular fullback; Dan Morelli, a good halfback, and Al Fiorentino, a guard, were not expected to play for the Eaglets because of injuries. Bob Sherwood, the preppers' best back, was called home to Bridgeport because of family illness, and was not listed to return in time for the game.

Ross, Stars Plan Flight to Hub Game

HERSHEY, Pa., Oct. 27—Art Ross, Bruins' manager, said today that Dit Clapper, Eddie Shore, Frank Brimsek, Bobby Bauer and himself would fly from Montreal to Boston on Monday morning to guarantee presence of the four hockey All-Stars in the Monday night exhibition game at Boston Garden between Bruins and Springfield Indians.

Shore is to play in this game for Springfield.

The Bruins' players are now looking forward to breaking camp here Sunday night and heading for Boston to establish permanent winter homes.

BIMELECH WILL WIN $25,000 RACE--WILSON

$25,000 New England Futurity

SIXTH RACE—$25,000 added, two-year-olds, "The New England Futurity," one mile and 70 yards:

7	Bimelech	122	F. A. Smith	2-5	Champion juvenile of year
3	Straight Lead	114	R. Nash	5-1	Good colt, second best
6	Peneion	109	T. Malley	6-1	Good effort to Camp Verde

By DAVE WILSON

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 27—Bimelech, Col. E. R. Bradley's unbeaten two-year-old Black Toney colt, will go to the post an odds-on favorite to win the $25,000 added New England futurity here tomorrow.

This was assured this morning when promptly at 9 o'clock, W. L. Davis, agent for Col. Bradley's Idle Hour Farm, deposited Bimelech's entry in the 'Gansett entry box.

FIVE STRAIGHT WINS

Victor in five starts this year, including the first triumph by a Bradley horse in the Belmont Futurity, Bimelech will go to the post tomorrow, one of the shortest priced favorites in the history of the New England Futurity.

The futurity distance, one mile and seventy yards, will test the colt's stamina for the first time, and the probable starting field of eight will provide the toughest opposition of his short career.

The third running of the New England Futurity will be worth approximately $35,000 to the winner. The gross value will be well over $50,000, making it the richest juvenile race of the entire New England season.

Bimelech's earnings are already well over the $100,000 mark, and victory would put him high on the list, and close to Kayak II and Challedon in money earned.

LIKES THE HEAVY GOING

Trainer Bill Hurley gave Bimelech a breather on the 'Gansett strip for the first time this morning. The colt appeared to like the going, which was slightly heavy from yesterday's rains.

Hurley expressed satisfaction with the colt's actions, and there appeared little doubt but that he would go to the post tomorrow, probably at odds of 2 to 5.

In his blow out this morning Bimelech went a half-mile in :48 4-5 with fractions in :23 3-5, :35 3-5. The colt showed speed and breezed after going three eighths.

TIP FOR SCOTER SHOOTERS

By DARK MONTREAL

Even though the general duck hunting season is now open, the good, reliable coot or scoter is still the mainstay of many a coastwise hunter's bag.

So if you've given away coot to all your friends who will take 'em and you are now faced by the stern obligation of eating coot or confessing yourself a game hog, you'll welcome State Ornithologist Joe Hagar's "Tip for Coot Shooters" in this autumn's issue of the Massachusetts Conservation Bulletin.

Hagar says:

"By the time this issue of the bulletin is out, the scoter season in Massachusetts will be in full swing, and with it the perennial argument as to whether the coot is an edible fowl or just a fowl.

GULF BETWEEN TWO

"I suspect that in the shadowy past when stomachs were stronger and appetites heartier there was not such lively disagreement on the subject, but today it seems that some want nothing better to eat than coot, some can imagine nothing worse, and between the two lies an unbridgeable gulf."

Digressing slightly here, Hagar quotes a veteran Cape Cod villager who told a hunter who asked him if coot were good to eat:

"Wa-al, mister, I don't want to diskerrige ye, but I allus figgered a feller gotta really be raised on 'em to like 'em."

But it isn't so, honest, it isn't, according to Ornithologist Hagar. And he furnishes a coot recipe given him by the late William Brewster, veteran Cambridge outdoors man and naturalist.

BAKED IN GROUND

Brewster wrote:

"We learned to cook them (coot) as we baked our beans—in a hole dug in the ground and liberally banked, above, below and on every side, with red-hot hardwood coals.

"Before being consigned to this backwoods oven the bird was stuffed with sage, onions and breadcrumbs and wrapped in several thicknesses of stout brown paper or birchbark, smeared with butter or lard. It was kept among the coals, with a freshly kindled fire burning above them, for just an hour and a quarter.

"When taken out and unwrapped, it looked more like a boiled than a roasted duck, for the skin remained smooth and moist.

"Scoters cooked in this fashion were invariably tender, juicy and deliciously flavored, even when old or excessively fat. Some of us preferred them to black ducks or even wood ducks (the latter rigorously protected now) and everyone feasted on them thankfully enough, whenever they could be obtained."

Still on the subject of ducks—in the sky, not in the bean-hole—an eloquent and logical appeal is now being made to America's 13,000,000 sportsmen to unite against possible recurrence of "war-inspired, fruitless marsh drainage which bankrupted farmers and spelled disaster for ducks following the first World War."

Ducks Unlimited, Inc., the sportsmen's organization which has been largely instrumental in restoring duck breeding marshes and in encouraging the North American continent's duck population to its present upward cycle, is making the appeal against future "anti-duck" land-reclamation.

WARNING ON DRAINAGE

Says Ducks Unlimited's newly issued plea:

"The 1914-1918 scramble for more wheat land, abetted by drainage scheme promoters and record wartime prices for grain, resulted in the most profligate destruction of natural resources of recent times.

"Since birth of the idea that more agricultural land was the answer to our farm problem, some 77,000,000 acres of water and marsh areas have been drained, largely under governmental auspices. Much of this marshland subsequently was found sterile, farmers lost all they had invested in it, and the abandoned drained area became death traps for wildlife during droughts.

"The present world wheat supply, exclusive of Russia and China, is estimated at 5570 million bushels, as compared with 3500 million at the outbreak of first World War. Obviously, our problem right now is not one of finding additional farm land.

"Duck hunters particularly should join up with Ducks Unlimited 'for duration' of the current war period to help head off any possible rebirth of the drainage craze."

Colgate at Peak For H. C. Clash

WORCESTER, Oct. 27—Physically and morally rehabilitated, Colgate's football forces were due to arrive here this evening for tomorrow's clash with the powerful Holy Cross eleven.

Wrecked physically in its opening game with N. Y. U., which it lost 7-6, Colgate was cannon fodder for Duke the following week, losing 35-0, but it showed its class when it came back to defeat Brown just seven day later, 10-0.

In that N. Y. U. game, Joe Hongue was carried off the field with a brain concussion, and Charlie Coley, Glen Triber, Wallie Davids and Dave Buck all were forced to retire.

But all these boys are back now, and the team, potentially great, is expected to hit its peak tomorrow.

Varsity Club Fete Draws 250

Harvard's Varsity Club dinner this evening will be the best attended in history, with more than 250 acceptances listed.

Dick Floyd, president of the club, was forced today to switch the dinner from the club's cramped quarters to the home spacious living room of the Harvard Union, next door.

Leo Leary, Bill Bingham, Dick Harlow, Torby Macdonald are Harvard men listed to speak. Others to mount the rostrum will be: Bill McCarter and Pudge Neidlinger, Dartmouth; Romeyn Berry, Cornell.

GRID SECOND GUESSERS THROWN BY CHANGING SYSTEMS OF PLAY

By BILL GRIMES

A hobby, fad or craze, generally speaking, is short-lived, with one exception, namely, second guessing college quarterbacks.

Miniature golf wasn't in vogue long enough for the promoters to retrieve their output for balls and putters. Jazz gave way to the jitterbugs and the "speaks" discarded dutch locks for liquor licenses.

But the State st. and Monday morning quarterbacks have their permanent hobby.

Since the World War, football has undergone some drastic alterations. The old time quarterback is now the blocker, the fullback is the line plunger and the halfbacks are the wing and tailbacks.

ROCKNE'S THEORY

Coaches who use the Notre Dame system assign the blocking back to call signals. The Warner system rarely relies upon a blocker to direct the team's play. Frequently, some other back, or a center, guard or tackle is appointed field general.

Knute Rockne believed that the blocking back was the ideal signal caller. Judging from his success or failure to clear a path for the ball carrier, according to Rockne, the blocker was better qualified to call the plays.

For example, if the blocker discovered that he could handle an end but had trouble getting a tackle out of a play, when he was in a tight spot, the flankman was the victim.

P. D. Haughton was of the opinion that a quarterback could not be subjected to any punishment if he was to be successful selecting plays. Under Haughton, Harvard quarterbacks played the safety position and except when they caught punts, seldom, if ever, carried the ball. They never did any blocking. He assigned a halfback to that job.

So, the critics who blame the quarterback usually have singled out the wrong man under the Warner system, and there also are a few Notre Dame coaches who have not been able to see eye to eye with the Rockne system.

Latta McCray, a guard, was one of the best field generals in the annals of football at Dartmouth. For three years, Marshall Goldberg called the offensive plays for the Pittsburgh Panthers. In the Goldberg lineup, Biggie was listed as a right halfback.

There isn't a tougher job in football than that of blocking back. He is the "Forgotten Man." He makes possible the sensational runs which thrill the fans. But rarely is he ever mentioned.

After spending 60 minutes throwing blocks, without carrying the ball, the so-called quarterback, who doesn't call plays, must burn up when the second guessers start telling the world he's to blame for a defeat for selecting the wrong play.

LEAHY WORRIED

Coach Frank Leahy is very much concerned over the B. C.-St. Anselm's game.

Cleo O'Donnell and Jack Cannell scouted B. C. a week ago. They admit that the Eagles are deeper in the backfield and therefore have the edge but refuse to concede that the Boston College line compares with St. Anselm's.

The Boston College-St. Anselm's game will be a thriller.

Boston After Dark

was jeered the breadth of the land, by the way . . . Half the sports columnists in the U. S. A. sharpened their pencils and requisitioned new typewriter ribbons to go to town on the H-Y-P bit of chest-beating, and it might have been better if the whole pact had not been publicized . . . We don't think his critics can blame Bill Bingham for that item . . . Anyway, Bill is definitely "on the spot" in certain quarters, and whether the quarters are influential enough to do anything about it, I wouldn't be knowing . . . Well, Bill, forewarned, etc.—and now about Dartmouth.

DARTMOUTH IS A CENTER OF LEARNING popularly supposed to be inhabited by a species of super-Joe Colleges who have more hair on their chests, more iron in their biological chemistry, more steel in their muscles and more everything virile in their natures than corresponding white-shoes-in-winter-wearers on rival campuses . . . Dartmouth also is a place where love of college sends them out just short of being fanatics on the subject . . . All is generally serene at Hanover . . . You seldom hear a Dartmouth criticizing another Dartmouth and seldom does a rumble of discontent come rumbling down the Hills toward civilization . . . Well, my hearties, how would you like to know that a bunch of Old Grads have been whooping it up in criticism of Alma Mater? . . . They certainly have . . . And it's dat ol' debbil football again.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

BILL BINGHAM, Tom Stevenson, or maybe Dick Harlow, should do something about it, for with the Harvard-Dartmouth game on the 15-yard line I found Huntington R. (Tack) Hardwick, one of the Crimson's football immortals, talking indoor baseball at a luncheon on the lawn of the Parker House.

"Tack" Hardwick

When Percy Haughton needed a first class tackle or back at Harvard, the job went to Hardwick. It may have been because "Tack" was such a great back, but at any rate he was named to Walter Camp's All-America team as an end.

I interrupted "Tack's" discussion of the wonders of indoor baseball to ask who he thought would win the Harvard-Dartmouth game.

"We (of course being the Harvards) will win," replied Hardwick.

George Carens and Vic Jones said amen.

Carens admitted he was stringing along with Harvard because he had named them to win earlier in the season. The Penn defeat caused Carens to lower Harvard's rating.

"What about Yale and Michigan?" demanded Hardwick.

The question was turned back on "Tack."

"Michigan figures to win, but it will only be by an edge," replied Hardwick. "Yale showed great strength against Penn which has one of the finest lines in the East."

Harry Hooper as Manager of Boston Club

IT WAS SUGGESTED that some mention be made of indoor baseball in view of the fact that was the purpose of the luncheon.

"Boston will have a franchise in the National Professional Indoor Baseball League," declared Hardwick. "Tris Speaker will be president, while Harry Hooper, the old Red Sox outfielder, will probably manage the local club.

"We shall open our season against Philadelphia in the City of Brotherly Love on November 17.

"There will be an Eastern and a Western division in the league. The Eastern division will consist of Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, while the Western division will be composed of Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis. The winners in each league will later clash in an indoor baseball world's series."

75 Million Watch Softball, Indoor Baseball

HARDWICK STATED that 75,000,000 people watch softball and indoor baseball games each year. There are 12,000,000 players and 190,000 organized teams.

"We shall try to use as much New England material as possible. We can get what players we need from Brooklyn, the West and the Coast.

"Associated with me in the Boston club will be Ralph Hornblower, Ernie Soucy, Bill Thompson and Howard Johnston.

"I know you will be interested in knowing that Bill Carey, formerly head of the New York Garden and also at one time associated with the Boston Garden, has a financial interest in the Brooklyn club.

"J. Warren Pershing, son of the famous General, has an interest in the New York club.

"Moose McCormack, the pinch hitter for the Giants in the days of John McGraw, will manage New York."

Somebody mentioned the time when McGraw fined McCormack after the latter had hit a home run.

"The orders were for Moose to bunt," declared the fiery McGraw.

Indoor Baseball Ready to Click Here

I HAVE AN idea that indoor baseball is ready to click here. It has gone over in a large way in the West, and there isn't any reason to believe it will not also succeed in Boston.

The game is played with a nine-man team, and the ball used is harder than the one used in softball games.

Walter Brown advanced the information the ball is called a "rabbit ball."

"The game is so fast," said Hardwick, "that if a player juggles the ball for the fraction of a second, he hasn't got a chance to throw his man out.

"We shall not use any oldtime baseball players in our lineup. The game calls for different timing than baseball, and is faster.

"Keltner of the Cleveland Indians got his start playing indoor baseball. In time we shall develop many youngsters who will find their way into big league baseball."

HARDWICK SAYS there will be a popular priced scale of 25 cents to $1.10.

"It will be a game for the masses," declared Hardwick.

The Garden will be set up so as to care for 13,000 persons.

I think "Tack" would probably be willing to compromise on an average attendance of 10,000 for each game played at home.

In parting, "Tack" did mention he was going to attend the Harvard-Dartmouth game. Indoor baseball may be "Tack's" business, but football is still his pleasure.

CHICAGO TO STAY IN BIG TEN BUT AVOID GRID ROUTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (INS)—The University of Chicago has no intention of withdrawing from the Big Ten, but probably will "modify" its athletic program to avoid as far as possible any more football routs similar to last Saturday, T. N. Metcalf, athletic director, said today. Metcalf's comment was occasioned by editorials in the student magazine, "Pulse," which advocated "Polite subsidization of athletes along the Harvard variety." Chicago suffered its worst defeat in history last Saturday when trounced 85 to 0 by the University of Michigan. Harvard beat the Maroons 61 to 0 the week before.
